Washington — (CP) — The purchasing power of the American farmer in 1930 will be greater than it has been during the past year. Approximately eight and a half billions of dollars are spent by American agriculture annually and according to the latest official figure the value of the crops amounts to about 1 per cent more, or approximately eighty-five million dollars more than last year.

There is all the more interesting because the yields were reduced about 5 per cent in 1929 as compared with 1928.

The area of crops shows a one per cent increase but this is confined to a few crops. The chief increases in value and various commercial vegetable crops combined, also went up in value. There is every indication that agriculture is in process of reorganization and that greater diversification is being practiced by the farmer.

The government authorities here by their statistical efforts are attempting to advise the farmer more fully concerning the importance of diversification, so as to reduce the hazards. Unfortunately, however, not all farmers can practice diversification.

HOPE TO BOOST INCOME
The Federal Farm board is, of course, the principal agency of the government in attempting to solve the marketing problems of the farmer. It is through the agency of the legislation that by a system of orderly marketing, the financial return of the farmer each year will be increased and that production will be held in check through the activities of cooperative organizations.

Abnormal weather conditions are just now hampering farm operations and the prices of farm products generally are regarded as unsettled. The full effect of such steps as the farm board has already taken is not yet known.

MAMMOTH GRAVE FOR 30 VICTIMS OF MINE
McAlester, Okla. — (CP) — A mammoth grave today awaits the bodies of 30 victims of the explosion which Tuesday snuffed out the lives of 30 miners in the Old Town coal company's mine in North McAlester.

The mass funeral service, which will be held today under the direction of Father Maurice Puerstinger, has been arranged for most, if not all, of the Mexican victims of the disaster by H. Valdez, of Oklahoma City, Mexican consul.

The grave, in a plot of ground provided by the city of McAlester, was prepared yesterday by 15 convicts from the state penitentiary here.

SAYS COUNTY OFFICERS FAIL TO PAY TAXES
Superior — (CP) — Frank Kenyon, county board member, yesterday charged that several county officials were listed among the tax delinquents owing thousands of dollars.

If the sheriff and other officials failed to "act quickly," he said, he would call on Gov. Walter J. Kohler for aid. "There are some county officials who have not paid their taxes in years," he said, "and I know of one store that hasn't paid one cent in 10 years. The sheriff has refused to aid in collecting taxes."

Japs Start Tonight For London Meet

New York — (CP) — The Japanese delegates to the London naval conference were the guests of their countrymen here today before sailing for London tonight on the liner Olympia.

They were met by a group of Japanese officials and merchants headed by Consul General S. Savada when they arrived in two special cars from Washington yesterday.

Former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, leader of the naval delegation, said his government would support a battleship building holiday until 1936. He said Japan would insist upon the 10-10-7 ratio in auxiliary ships and the right to construct an adequate tonnage of submarines deemed necessary to defend the many islands of the country.

He also disclosed that his government favors a program for closer limitation on the construction of air-planes.

"If the proposal for a complete capital ship holiday comes before the conference," he said, "the Japanese delegation will be prepared to consider a similar agreement on air-planes carriers. In addition, the present limits on construction of air-planes carriers could well be reduced to lower levels."

"While the Japanese government considers the economic savings attending such a proposal to be important, it must be borne in mind that the most vital matter for consideration of the conference is the reduction of categories which are not now limited."

Arrangements for entertainment of the delegates today include a luncheon by Consul General Savada, a dinner at the Nippon club and a reception by Mayor Walker at the city hall.

STIMSON TRIES TO CALM LAREDO AFFAIR

Tells Moody Department Is Taking Steps to See What Can Be Done

Washington — (CP) — The state department is endeavoring to find a means of settling the differences that have arisen between the government of Mexico and the city of Laredo, Texas, which resulted in the closing of the Mexican consulate at the border city.

With the merchants of Laredo facing a sharply curtailed holiday trade through the loss of Mexican patronage, Secretary Stimson informed Governor Moody that his department was "taking steps to see what, if anything, could be done."

Indications for conspiracy to murder pending in Laredo against former President Calles of Mexico and the recent arrest of Attorney General John A. Valle to arrest the Mexican leader while passing through the city precipitated the closing of the consulate.

In his message to Governor Moody, however, Secretary Stimson said, "The closing of the Mexican consulate was not a measure of retaliation for the recent incident but arose from a feeling in Mexico City, drawn from several happenings extending over a period of time, that Laredo is not a safe port for Mexican public officials to pass through in traveling."

The Mexican embassy here would make no statement, and dispatches from Mexico City said that the American embassy there had received no instructions to intervene, although it had been informed of Governor Moody's action in bringing the case to the attention of the state department. No course of action had been decided upon, the embassy said.

RUSS ENVOY RECEIVED BY PRINCE OF WALES
London — (CP) — Full resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics seemed complete today as the new Soviet ambassador presented his official credentials to the prince of Wales.

The new British ambassador to Soviet Russia was to present his credentials simultaneously and an exchange of notes dealing with the question of propaganda was to follow immediately, this being one of the conditions of the resumption of relations.

King George did not receive the new Russian ambassador but the prince of Wales greeted him in the audience chamber of St. James' palace.

K. Sokolnikov, who now becomes the first ambassador of the Soviet regime to hold that post in Great Britain, accompanied by his staff, drove to the palace in two state carriages.

MIDDLE WEST FIGHTING WAY THROUGH SNOW

Chicago — (CP) — Old Sol played a return engagement on the middle west today. The audience was the same, a little more enthusiastic than on Sol's last appearance here 12 days ago; but the scenery was new.

Ribbons of roads were being traveled from the blanket of snow that had overspread the country for 60 hours. Snow plows fought their way across drifted highways to rescue standard motorists and reopen interstate bus services and spun new webs in the cities where street traffic had been all but paralyzed by the greatest blizzard in a decade.

Railway trains that were marooned at suburban stations as much as nine hours yesterday were striving to move on normal schedules today and for the first time in nearly two weeks air mail planes were casting their accustomed shadows across the lanes that center on Chicago. The first eastbound plane to leave here in several days departed at midnight but was forced to land at Goshen, Ind., to await better visibility.

It was a feeble sun that shone today and there was still a hint of snow in the air — a hint that was a definite threat to weather prognostics for Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas. But the danger of snow was expected to be brief and the drifting at an end. Highway officials hoped the principal state thoroughfares of the middle west would be passable by tomorrow.

The grip of zero was as firm and icy as ever today and the lower lake states shivered in prospect of the lowest temperatures of the cold wave tonight.

Williston, N. D., still held the unenvied title of the nation's coldest spot with a temperature of 39 degrees below zero, although it warmed up to 14 below during the heat of the day Thursday. It was 20 below at Bismarck and Devil's Lake, N. D., 22 below at Miles City, Mont., 18 below at Sheridan, Wyo., and 6 below at St. Paul and Duluth. Chicago was relatively warm at 8 above but the thermometer was feeling hoarse after tonight. Zero readings extended down into Missouri and Kansas, and freezing temperatures were recorded even at Mobile and New Orleans.

COLD IN DIXIE
Atlanta — (CP) — Temperatures hit the totem pole in Dixie again today, sliding downward in face of a cold snap that sprinkled snow over the western half of the south and brought bitter winds to the entire area.

Only one death was reported. An unidentified Mexican died of exposure near Shreveport, La. Numerous traffic mishaps occurred on streets slippery by snow in Tennessee, Arkansas, Alabama, northern Mississippi and even as far south as New Orleans in Louisiana.

In both New Orleans and Atlanta, where snow is a rarity, the flakes melted as rapidly as they fell.

CANNED HEAT KILLS TWO IN MICHIGAN
Escanaba, Mich. — (CP) — Second victim of "canned heat" poisoning, Fred Steedman, 58, of Milwaukee, was dead today. Monday, Chester Wallin, 39, of Green Bay, who had drunk the poison with Steedman, died.

Auburn Welfare League
Blamed For Prison Riots
Criminals in Control Start
Reign of Terror, New York
Governor Told

Albany, N. Y. — (CP) — Col. George F. Chandler's recommendation for the abolition of the Auburn Prisoners' Welfare League was before Governor Roosevelt today, backed by the colonel's assertion that the league was "controlled" by plotting criminals and created a reign of terror which caused two riots at that institution.

Colonel Chandler acted as Mr. Roosevelt's personal investigator in an extensive study of the Dec. 11 riot.

"Desperate characters have obtained control of the Welfare League and have held responsible positions in the league," said Chandler. "This has given them freedom and they have gone about the ward, through the corridors and have used their force at any and all times, even well into the night."

"In fact we have a statement from a guard at the gate that night after night he has looked through the window of this room at gambling going on with money on the table and drinks of what character he did not know but surmised."

"Prisoners have catered to the guards and have used vile and abusive language to them, defied their authority and when put in the cells by the guards have been let out through the league officials immediately to laugh at the guards."

"League members have taken prisoners out of the line as they were marching and have ordered them in to the league room and here the league members themselves have, behind closed doors, beaten up prisoners so that they had to be taken to the hospital. In fact, a veritable reign of terror has obtained in this prison through the machinations of the criminals in control of the league."

SENATORS IN WRANGLE OVER TARIFF MEASURE

Washington — (CP) — A spirited controversy over the tariff developed in the house today when Representative Garner of Texas, the minority leader, challenged Representative Ramseyer, Republican, Iowa, to state his position on the tariff rates in the bill as it is being rewritten in the senate.

Ramseyer declared in the house earlier today the members of the federal farm board had "infused a new confidence in the president's plan for agricultural rehabilitation."

"When all the agencies provided for in the farm act of 1929 get into full operation," Ramseyer said, "the further results hoped for will be some control over production and ultimately to place the prices of farm products not only on a stabilizing basis but also on a higher level."

80 Injured In New York Rail Mishap

Short-Circuited Third Rail
Causes Turmoil in Subway

New York — (CP) — Caught in a subway train during the rush hour, in a tunnel under the East river, while great clouds of smoke caused by a short circuited third rail rolled up around them, several hundred men and women today trampled each other in their excitement and smashed the windows with their fists.

Police estimated that 80 were injured, many of them cut and bruised, and all suffering from smoke inhalation.

Thirty-five were taken to St. John's hospital in Long Island city, where it was said they all had acute bronchitis from the smoke.

Many of them, heedless of the danger of stepping on the third rail, had stumbled through the smoke and darkness half a mile to Queens Plaza, Long Island city.

The accident occurred as a Brooklyn-Manhattan transit train, operated by Motorman John Zapphis and conductor Alfred Stillwell was speeding through the tunnel from Queens to Manhattan.

About 1,000 feet from the emergency exit up to Welfare island, approximately half way through the tunnel, water dripping down had started through the insulation on a third rail conduit. A crew at work on the insulation dropped back as the train approached. There was a short circuit, a blaze, and thick, heavy smoke.

Motorman Zapphis brought the train to a stop some distance from the fire. The train was packed with persons enroute to their work, as it pulled to a stop, they looked at each other in alarm, then, as they saw smoke rolling up outside the windows and drifting in around the doors, they became excited.

While the guards shouted, "Keep cool," and tried vainly to quiet them down, the passengers began to shove and push and trample each other. Then they began to break the windows, letting in the smoke.

The guards opened the doors and managed to lead some of the passengers to the Welfare island emergency exit. Others were placed aboard another train, headed toward Long Island city, that drew up just as they were scrambling out.

Many others plunged along back on foot to the Queens Plaza station. After they had gone some distance, power was turned off and they were marshaled into order by a traffic policeman who had been a passenger on the train.

THREATEN TO CUT FUNDS OF CRIME BOARD

Senator Harris Says Prohibition
Enemies Want
Continued Silence

Washington — (CP) — Senate dries began a drive today to force an early report on open hearings by President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

Two Democratic dries-Senators Harris, Georgia, and Glass, Virginia — gave notice in the senate that "not another dollar" will be appropriated to the commission unless it submits some sort of report on its first eight months of work.

Senator Glass, author of the $250,000 fund for the commission, charged that the commission had "shunted aside the original purpose—investigation of prohibition."

Senator Harris said that "every enemy of the prohibition bill wants to keep the commission there" without any report. He said he would propose an amendment to the next bill appropriating money for the commission requiring it to have open hearings.

However, it was another dry—Senator Jones, Republican, Washington—who blocked action today on the resolution of Senator Harris requesting President Hoover to have the commission submit a preliminary report to the senate to be used in connection with dry law enforcement appropriations.

STRESSES DRY LAW

"This commission was appointed principally, if not solely, for the purpose of inquiring into prohibition," said Senator Glass, "but until last week not a member of the commission had even read the provision in the appropriation bill authorizing its existence."

"It is the most extraordinary exhibition of indifference to the expressed will of congress that I have ever known," he added.

There has been no inkling from the commission as to when it will report. Senator Glass said that only last week, eight months after the organization of the commission one of its members came to his office to get a copy of the appropriation bill in which were provided funds for its existence.

Senator Harris also directed his fire at Chairman Wickersham of the commission.

DON'T WANT SECRECY

"I do not believe the prohibitionists are going to get any report from this commission, to the congress if the chairman of the commission and some others can prevent it," he said.

"It is the only star-chamber commission of which I know and under our form of government I don't think there should be a commission coming within that category."

"Every enemy of the prohibition law is in favor of this commission staying there just as they are, acting behind closed doors, and conducting their deliberations for years. They expect to stay there for four more years and never make a report."

"It will not do us any good."

The Georgia senator understood a member of the commission recently had been looking for a house to lease here for four years.

Sometime ago Senator Hawes, Democratic, Missouri, a wet, gave notice in the senate that he would insist upon an early report from the commission and also for open hearings by it.

JURY Pondering Over
MULARKEY GANG CASE
Fond du Lac — (CP) — The jury hearing the Gladwin Mularkey case began deliberations this morning. Mularkey, alleged gang leader, faces eight charges, ranging from larceny to arson. The jury was instructed to find a verdict of either guilty or acquittal on all counts.

Gladwin was arrested after his brothers, Kenneth and Clayton, confessed that they had been headed by Gladwin, terrorized Marquette for five years. The two brothers were brought from Green Bay reformatory where they were sentenced for their parts in the gang affairs to testify against Gladwin.

District Attorney K. J. Callahan today made known that he had received a letter addressed in a woman's handwriting threatening his life. "Ought to be shot," the letter read, "for prosecuting Gladwin," and it added, "I would like to do the shooting."

COUPLE ACCUSED OF BURNING OWN HOME
Menomonee — (CP) — Accused of arson in the burning of their home, Ambrose and Annie Martin, husband and wife, are in jail here awaiting a hearing Dec. 21. They were unable to provide bail of $2,000. Deputy Fire Marshal Gilbert Gilchrist arrested the couple.

BRITISH PREMIER GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE
London — (CP) — Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister, today retained the confidence of the British house of commons on an important measure but by the margin of eight votes. The commons last night voted the coal mines bill its second reading, 281 to 278.

Need Lots More Money To Take Care Of City's Needy

Less than one-third of the $250,000 required by the four charities operating in Appleton Welfare council has been contributed by Good Fellows so far in this annual appeal, which closes on Christmas day. Contributions reported today totaled less than $100 and raised the total to $332 which is far from the $250,000 goal.

The Civic council, which is sponsoring the campaign is urging Appleton men and women to give liberally to this fund. It is explained that there are an exceptionally large number of men out of employment this year and the drain on the welfare organizations will be exceedingly heavy before the end of this winter.

A great many families will have to abandon any idea of Christmas unless they are helped by Good Fellows. It will be pretty much of a pity if there will be any children in Appleton without at least a reminder of Christmas because men and women who could afford to give will not do so.

Of the $332 that has been contributed thus far, $131 was given by children in public and parochial schools, leaving only $201 contributed by the men and women of Appleton. The list of Good Fellows is unusually short this year, indicating that fewer people are opening their hearts to the poor and unfortunate.

Rail Merger Outline Is Made Public

New York — (CP) — Dow, Jones and Company, in a copyrighted despatch from its Washington bureau, today states that the Interstate Commerce commission's railroad consolidation plan had completed, allocating the country's railway properties into 19 major systems, comprising five systems in the east, based upon the present four trunk line system, and an additional system, the nucleus of which would be the Washish. Official publication plan is expected within a few days.

In addition to the five systems in the east, two are planned for New England, three for the south and nine for the west. These are exclusive of the Canadian-controlled Soo line, Grand Trunk Western and Vermont Central. The despatch states that the plan is not viewed in responsible quarters as an iron clad affair but the general impression is that it is intended as a guide for the ultimate groupings and puts the burden of proof on the carriers.

In the east, the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems would be left substantially as they are. The Washish is scheduled to receive the Lehigh Valley, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, the Western Maryland, the Wheeling and Lake Erie and an interest in the Chesapeake & Ohio railway of Indiana.

The Baltimore and Ohio would receive the Reading, the Jersey Central, and the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh. The Baltimore and Ohio and the Washish would each get an interest in the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, recently acquired by the Penn Road Corp., an affiliate of the Pennsylvania railway.

The Chesapeake and Ohio, in addition to the Erie, Peru Marquette and Hocking Valley, already controlled by the Van Sweringens, would be Turn to page 4 col. 8

SAY HUCKINS WILL YIELD
SELF TO AUTHORITIES
Hancock — (CP) — The arrest of George Huckins shared interest today with the promise that his father, Elmer, "finance wizard" sought on an Iowa fraud warrant, would surrender to authorities.

On the statement of E. J. Courtney, supervisor of the Huckins case near here, Sheriff Henry Schultz of Waushara co arranged to pay a visit today in the belief the elder Huckins would return from his mysterious trip.

Courtney told the sheriff that Huckins is not dodging arrest but is conferring with associates in an effort to bring in enough money to satisfy the $72,000 claims of Iowa investors against their "52 per cent with safety" investment business. He believed Huckins was in Portage and assured Schultz he would return "probably today."

Head of Tariff Association
Has "No Self-respect," Senate Told
Washington — (CP) — A scathing arraignment of the activities of J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff association, was made today in a report to the senate by its lobby committee, while questioning of witnesses continued in the committee room and the war department promised an inquiry into testimony that General Elmer Crocker, retired, had given interests working for a lower sugar tariff information on war plans of the army general staff.

Arnold, in the report presented by Chairman Caraway of the committee was described as being without veracity and as apparently having no sense of "self-respect."

Arnold, who is also manager of the American Taxpayers league, was said by the report to have collected a million dollars during the past few years and it was asserted that he used most of this money for the benefit of himself and a small group connected with him in the organizations.

Questioned nine days by the committee, Arnold was said in the report to have no connections that would enable him to influence legislation, and surprise was expressed that business men and organizations should contribute to the organization. Several concerns that had contributed $2,000, or $1,000 were listed in the report.

Arnold's activities were described as reprehensible and legislation against them was recommended.

AGRICULTURE SUPPLY
BILL PASSED BY HOUSE
Washington — (CP) — The annual supply bill of the agriculture department appropriating $153,255,079 for the fiscal year 1931, was passed today by the house.

The measure now goes to the senate. It was passed without a record vote except as reported by the appropriation committee. There were but a few minor amendments. The measure carried permanent annual appropriations of $11,618,189.

The total appropriation represented an increase of $8,573,904 over last year, and a decrease of $214,810 under the budget estimates.

London — (CP) — F. C. Chichester, a wealthy New Zealand, climbed into the cockpit of a tiny moth airplane at Croydon today and told his friends: "Cheerio! I'm off to Australia."

PLANE FALLS
FROM HEIGHT
OF 400 FEET
Kaynor of Bay State. Secretary, Two Airmen and Civilian Killed

INQUIRY IS STARTED
Accident Is Worst in History of Bolling Field at Washington

Washington — (CP) — Five persons, including a member of congress, his secretary, and three others were hurried to death today in the worst crash in the history of Bolling field.

Representative William Kaynor, of Massachusetts, enroute by air to his home in Springfield, along with Stanley D. Lowe, his office associate, passengers in the plane, were killed. Captain Harry A. Dinger, pilot of the plane, Arthur A. McGill, a civilian air employee, and Vladimir Kuzma, mechanic, lost their lives.

The big plane reached a height of about 400 feet when it seemed to hesitate and turn downward, crashing with tremendous force.

Bolling field officers immediately closed sources of information pending an inquiry.

News of the accident reached the capital first from a woman who made the trip by automobile. She was in a hysterical state and could not immediately identify any of those killed.

EXAGGERATED REPORTS
Reports then spread like wildfire, highly exaggerated in most instances, some of them placing the number of congressional victims as high as five. Representative Ketchum of Michigan, was first listed with the dead, but his office denied the report.

Lowe, who is also a resident of Springfield and McGill were requested by Representative Kaynor to accompany him on the flight to Massachusetts.

Kaynor only recently had been placed on the house military committee and today's tragedy ended his first journey in an airplane.

Captain Dinger was considered one of the most expert aviators in the army. He personally piloted Chairman James of the house military committee recently on a trip of 20,000 miles over the country for inspection purposes.

SEVERING FIRST TERM
Representative Kaynor was serving his first term in congress, having been elected in November a year ago. He was born in Sanborn, Iowa, in 1884, was a graduate of Yale in 1912 and was manager of the football team there. Prior to his election to congress he had served as postmaster at Springfield, Mass., for six years and formerly was chairman of the Republican city committee.

The crash occurred, some ground observers said, when Captain Dinger attempted to bank his plane into the wind. It seemed to come down as if such a maneuver was intended and then it failed to rise at the proper time.

The wrecked machine was a Fokker trimotor plane known as the "C-3." These ships have unusual power. All of those aboard were killed.

Observers agreed that an apparent attempt was made by Captain Dinger to make a left turn after the plane had ascended to a height of 200 feet on taking off. It crashed after a moment of hesitation in mid-air, burying its engines three feet into the hard ground.

Three aboard were killed instantly. Their bodies were removed without difficulty, and the wreckage was buried within an hour after the big machine struck the ground.

WAS HIS FIRST FLIGHT
It was the first airplane flight for Representative Kaynor, who was going home to Springfield to surprise his family at the Christmas holidays. McGill was to have been married soon in Boston and he was on his way to that city. He was a special guest of Kaynor, who had urged him not to make the trip by air with another party yesterday.

News of the crash threw a damper on the activities of the house, where Kaynor, although a new member, had become popular. The house adjourned out of respect for him.

An immediate investigation of the accident was begun by Mr. Davison, who had traveled thousands of miles in the plane, known as one of the best in the army. Dinger was credited with being the most expert pilot of three-motored machines in the air corps.

The most direct account of the crash was given by Lieutenant Lealand S. Stranathan, who said the craft had an altitude of at least 300 feet and was over the far south end of the field when it started to turn to the left.

Then for some reason it swerved suddenly and dived earthward. All the passengers and the pilot were pronounced dead when field attendants reached the wreck.

The death of Representative Kaynor marked the second of a member of congress in an airplane accident. A

AVOID ACCIDENT BY FOLLOWING TRAFFIC SIGNALS, CHIEF SAYS

Prim Pleads With Citizens to Use Greater Care During Holidays

Greater cooperation of Appleton citizens in observing traffic officers and light signals on streets intersections in the business district was asked for Friday by Police Chief George T. Prim.

With the streets crowded with Christmas shoppers and the roads crowded with automobiles, busses and trucks, the city is constantly faced with the menace of serious traffic accidents, Chief Prim warned. "The roads are slippery and drivers have great trouble stopping their machines. Therefore when pedestrians walk across the intersection when the lights or the traffic officer on duty is permitting pedestrians take their lives in their hands."

The chief pointed out that especially there is a great need for caution in crossing streets. He said it makes the work of traffic officers considerably harder when pedestrians fail to heed his signals and walk across the streets between passing automobiles. "It is only a matter of a few seconds to wait until either the lights change and give the pedestrians the right of way or until the officers make it possible to cross the street with the traffic," Chief Prim said. "Pedestrians should curb their impatience and take fewer chances."

USE CARE IN DRIVING
The chief also urged motorists to use more care in driving through the business district because of the constant hazard of striking someone. He said the streets are slippery, which makes it harder for motorists to control their machines and stop in a short distance. Motorists should have their cars under control at all times.

The practice of some pedestrians of crossing streets between intersections was condemned by Chief Prim as a foolhardy and an unnecessary risk. Motorists do not expect to see pedestrians stop in the road from behind parked cars and they therefore are not as careful as at street corners, the chief said, and this makes the practice of "jay-walking" still more dangerous.

"Walk to the corner to cross the street," was the advice of Chief Prim to pedestrians, and then wait until the traffic lights or the traffic officer makes it possible to cross the street with the traffic."

WEISSGERBER OUT OF JOB AS MANAGER OF WESTERN CITY

Former Engineer Blames Politics for His Dismissal at San Mateo

Oscar J. Weissgerber, formerly city engineer here, has been discharged as city manager of San Mateo, Calif., by a council which refused to give any reasons for the dismissal except a curt note that "their resignation was necessary for the best interests of San Mateo."

Weissgerber refused to resign his office when his resignation was requested and demanded that formal charges be filed and he be given a hearing, but four of the five members of the council that discharged him refused to make public their reasons and declined to give Weissgerber a hearing.

Police Judge George Kartell was discharged at the same time and it was rumored in San Mateo that the city attorney also is to be removed.

Weissgerber said he would remain in San Mateo for some time, and it was stated in San Mateo papers that an organization of Weissgerber's friends have hinted at a recall of the men who discharged him from office. News dispatches indicated that three of the four men who voted for Weissgerber's dismissal had been elected last April after a hectic campaign. There was some talk during the campaign that if the three men were elected there would be a "housecleaning" in the city hall.

Weissgerber had been manager of San Mateo since 1925 and reports from the western city indicate he made a good record. Weissgerber, a published statements, said his work had never been criticized by the council and he blamed politics or his dismissal.

In my Father's house are many mansions: If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.—John 14:2-3.

PEAK OF HOLIDAY MAIL RUSH EXPECTED TODAY OR SATURDAY

Superintendent of Mails Says Public Really Is Mailing Earlier

The peak of the Christmas mailing season was well under way Friday morning, according to Frank Letter, superintendent of mails at the post office, who is directing the operations of the delivery system.

Mr. Letter said he believes the constant agitation for early mailing has been having some effect because the mail at the present time is much heavier than it was at this time last year.

Both the city carriers and the parcel post delivery workers are coming to work an hour earlier than usual, Mr. Letter said, in an effort to distribute as much of the mail as possible every day. Up to Thursday night it had been possible for the city carriers to cover their entire routes twice a day, as usual, and to deliver every piece of mail which arrived throughout the day. The delivery was a little later than usual, however.

With 10 trucks and 20 workers on the parcel delivery system, Mr. Letter said that the handling of this class of mail was being taken care of fairly well. Each route is covered once a day and there is a complete delivery of all packages received up to the time of starting work on the route.

According to W. H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster, the peak of the mailing rush is expected to be reached Friday or Saturday. While Mr. Zuehlke believes that there will be some people waiting until next week to mail their Christmas cards and packages he points out that they realize there is danger of this material not being delivered before Christmas and he expects that all citizens will mail Friday or Saturday to assure delivery in proper time.

dale rural schools, of the town of Center, will cooperate in staging a Christmas program and pie social tonight at the Valley View school. Miss Catherine Nash is the teacher of Valley View school and Miss Cora Feavel is the teacher of the Hillsdale school. The pupils of Woodlawn school, town of Grand Chute, also will present a program tonight under direction of their teacher, Thomas Davis. The Badger school, also town of Grand Chute, will present a program tonight under direction of the teacher, Arnold Schultz.

Pupils of Pleasant Dale school, town of Center, presented a Christmas program Thursday night. A box social followed the program. Miss Sylvia Spande is teacher of the school.

Police Judge George Kartell was discharged at the same time and it was rumored in San Mateo that the city attorney also is to be removed.

Weissgerber said he would remain in San Mateo for some time, and it was stated in San Mateo papers that an organization of Weissgerber's friends have hinted at a recall of the men who discharged him from office. News dispatches indicated that three of the four men who voted for Weissgerber's dismissal had been elected last April after a hectic campaign. There was some talk during the campaign that if the three men were elected there would be a "housecleaning" in the city hall.

Weissgerber had been manager of San Mateo since 1925 and reports from the western city indicate he made a good record. Weissgerber, a published statements, said his work had never been criticized by the council and he blamed politics or his dismissal.

Pope Pius Ends Voluntary Imprisonment In Vatican

PONTIFF 1ST BEYOND STATE IN 59 YEARS

Slips Away Without Announcement for Mass at St. John Lateran

Rome—(AP)—Pope Pius XI, ending nearly 60 years of self-imprisonment of the popes in the Vatican, made his exit at dawn today from the pontifical quarters and entered Italian territory.

The exit was the first of any pope since 1870 from the territory of what is now the Vatican state or Vatican city. On July 25, last, the pope left the confines of the Vatican proper to come to St. Peter's square, bearing the Blessed Sacrament in eucharistic procession. He was still then, however, within his own territory.

Save for the drive across Rome he today still was in his own territory, in a sense, since the Lateran palace and adjacent grounds have extraterritoriality under the Lateran treaties—have any buildings in Italy outside the Vatican wherever the pope may happen to be.

Notifying in any way, his holiness drove at 6:45 a. m. in an automobile from the Vatican to St. John Lateran, the palace or church where last Feb. 1 the treaties were signed solving the so-called Roman question. Even most of his entourage knew nothing of the departure.

He celebrated mass at St. John's commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination as a priest. So unassuming was the departure that no one knew that the pope was unaware that history had been made until issuance of a bulletin announcing the event by the Stefani News agency at 9:55 a. m.

St. John Lateran is the "mother church of Christendom" and is considered the cathedral of Rome. It was therefore natural that the pope, who is bishop of Rome, should go there. He was the first pope to celebrate mass at St. John Lateran since Pius IX.

The pontiff left the Vatican at 9 o'clock a. m. accompanied by Monsignor Caccia Dominione, chamberlain of his household, and a few other attendants. Meanwhile he had had the director of the Lombard seminary notified since he wished to be assisted at mass by the students of the school.

SERVED HIM IN 1879

The Lombard seminarians served young Don Achille Ratti on Dec. 21, 1879, when the pope said his first mass at San Carlo al Corso, and he wished their successors to be with him for the fiftieth anniversary of his priesthood.

Shortly after he arrived at the palace the students of the Roman seminary received word of the momentous event and hastily came to the church where they assisted the pontiff. The pope said the regular mass of the fourth Friday in Advent with commemoration of Saint Liberatus, the bishop whose feast falls today.

The pontiff wore the dark purple vestments suitable to mourning season of Advent Wednesdays and Fridays of which are observed as days of fasting and abstinence.

The altar at which the pope officiated was the very one before which he was ordained 50 years ago.

The mass said by the pontiff was the same said by thousands of humble priests, priests scattered over the whole world today. Only one pontiff attended the pontiff. The only circumstance distinguishing the event was the singing choir of the Pontifical Roman seminary and the chant of the Te Deum by the small boy of clergy attending.

At the conclusion the pope mounted his throne, which had been waiting 59 years for the ship of Rome's occupancy, and received there the homage of the cathedral chapter. Then returning to the altar he imparted the apostolic benediction to all present.

He halted to venerate the sacred relics kept at the church, which include what is purported to be a table of the Last Supper, and paused to admire a memorial tablet which St. John's chapter prepared in commemoration of the jubilee year.

The voluntary self-exile of the popes in the Vatican began in 1870 when the troops of the first Victor Emmanuel took Rome in the name of the Kingdom of Italy. Italy, which was a papal state, was forced to give up its temporal power and the pope was left with only the Vatican, never thereafter to leave it.

His successors emulated his example, the relations with the house of Savoy continuing strained until recently when the present pontiff, Pius XI, and the Italian premier, Benito Mussolini, sought a solution.

SOVEREIGN IN CITY

This solution was reached with signing in the Lateran palace Feb. 11 of the so-called Lateran treaties, establishing the Vatican and certain surrounding territory as the Vatican state or Vatican city. In which the pope would have practically all the privileges and sovereignty of the usual temporal ruler. He was recognized as spiritual father of Roman Catholics the world over and in Italy in particular, and in addition a large monetary indemnity was paid by the Italian government.

On Dec. 5 the pope received the king and queen of Italy at the Vatican, the first of the house of Savoy to set foot therein, and the next day received the princes and princesses of the blood.

Pope Pius XI at 72 is still hale and hearty, blessed with the robust constitution and perfected by arduous mountain climbing when a young man. His act today followed a century earlier this week at which six new cardinals were created, and issuance of an encyclical yesterday urging a devoted loyalty.

Eight women and four men completed the jury which made its verdict against Castle, who is charged to kidnap and is a wealthy real estate operator, is believed to have established a new high figure in a breach of promise case. Judge Ferguson expressed the opinion that the award doubles the largest previous one. He referred to the $225,000 verdict in the O'Brien-Manning case in New York, which was subsequently reduced by the court to $125,000.

NEW FRENCH SUB IS WORLD'S LARGEST; EVEN CARRIES PLANE

Surcouf Is in Reality a Submersible Cruiser — Crew Numbers 150

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris — With five world powers making preparations for the London naval disarmament conference, France has expected a position on the seas with the launching of the submarine Surcouf, the most formidable under-water craft ever constructed. It is planned that a sister ship will be put under construction as soon as tests prove the Surcouf's design is sound.

The Surcouf is in reality a submersible cruiser. In size and armament she is greater than any submarine in the service of British or American navies. She was slipped into the water at the Cherbourg navy yard with guns, carries an anti-aircraft battery, a novelty in submarine equipment.

Another remarkable departure of the Surcouf is that it carries, in a special water-tight compartment, or hangar, on the deck, a small seaplane which can direct her operations by radio over a considerable area. The depth of the Surcouf from the keel to the upper works is 42 1/2 feet, giving her a free board as high as a destroyer. Diesel engines will drive her 19 knots on the surface while electric motors will maintain a speed of 10 knots while submerged. With a cruising range enabling her to make two round trips across the Atlantic without refueling, the massive construction of her hull permits descending to a depth of 427 feet.

U. S. RECORD 220 FEET
No diving records of the V-4 are available, but the V-2 set a record for her class by submerging 220 feet off Provincetown, Mass. The greatest depth ever reached by an American submarine was 315 feet, but that was an accident. Lieut. Com. Lewis Hancock, Jr., took the L-4 to that depth in the Irish sea during the war when something went wrong with the bal-sitting ceremony, but newspaper cameramen were not allowed to operate and every precaution was taken to guard her secrets.

With the Surcouf being fitted for actual service, there is little doubt that France will go the limit at any naval disarmament conference in support of this type of defense.

SURPASSES ALL OTHERS
Nothing so powerful as the Surcouf has ever before been conceived in the line of submersibles. The British X-1 and the American V-4, hitherto the largest submarines afloat, are dwarfed by the French boat, the armaments of which make her formidable force against anything less than a heavily armed cruiser.

The Surcouf displaces 3250 tons on the surface and 4304 tons while submerged. These figures are calculated scale, which ignores the weight of on the Washington treaty standard oil and other items. The British light cruiser Comus only displaces 3750 tons, while her largest submarine displaces 3525 tons on the surface and 6300 when submerged.

The submarine is 490 feet in length, can attain a speed of 19 knots and has a cruising range of 13,000 miles, which means that it can go half way around the world without stopping. It is the most heavily armed of all submarines. It carries four 5-inch guns and 30 torpedoes. The upper deck is armored against shell fire and, in addition to four last. He survive the experience, but was killed in the crash of the dirigible Shenandoah over Ohio.

A crew of 150 men will be needed to man her.

While the American V-4 has only four torpedo tubes, the Surcouf has 14 built to take the largest and most destructive torpedoes. There are eight tubes in the bow, two in the stern and four broadside. The armament of Britain's largest submarine has four 5.2 inch guns and only six torpedo tubes.

The submarine, French naval officials say, is destined for colonial defense, and may be taken as France's argument for powerful submarines as essential to her safety at sea.

The Surcouf is named after one of the greatest of French sailors, Robert Surcouf, who preyed upon British shipping during the Napoleonic wars.

FARMER COMES FIRST

Now it is the United States Chamber of Commerce, that alert hand-maiden of big business, that is out after the president's Farm board. A few days ago its president objected to the policies of the board and now it is disclosed that Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce board, has been using his influence to obtain changes in the conditions on which wheat loans are being made. Not long since the senate radicals were attacking the Farm board for proceeding too slowly and for not extending sufficient help to the farmers. The complaint of the spokesman for big business is that it is going too fast and is lending its support to cooperatives in a most unbecoming manner.

Mr. Barnes went through a grilling by the senate committee which is investigating lobbying that may not change his prejudices but that he will not forget for some time. Mr. Barnes is a large grain exporter. He objects to loans being made by the Federal Farm board to cooperatives at lower rates of interest than private dealers have to pay; also, to the policy of setting wheat loan price schedules as an inducement to farmers to join cooperatives.

So far as the business Mr. Barnes represents enters into the picture, it will have to go if the Federal Farm board is successful in its objectives. The whole scheme of government assistance to agriculture is based on the creation and expansion of cooperative marketing. If this is developed on a scale that actually protects great farm industries like grain growing and enables them to control the marketing of their product, it must inevitably mean the elimination of the private grain dealer and exporter.

Naturally big business, with which our grain dealers and speculators are closely allied, view with fear and horror a government policy which threatens to destroy them. Naturally they are using their influence to discredit the board and to obstruct its work. That is the way with any interest that is entrenched. It fights for its prerogatives and its existence.

But Mr. Legge, a chairman of the farm board, is right and his critics are wrong. The plan of cooperative marketing is sound, and rests upon economic essentials to the prosperity of the producer and of considerable benefit to the consumer. Furthermore, it is not for the private grain interests to say how and when they shall be eliminated, even if they are reconciled to the prospect. The Federal Farm board was set up to meet a great national emergency. The interests of the farmers are infinitely more important than those of grain dealers, exporters and speculators.

If the farmers can sell their own products, and admittedly they can do so successfully by efficient organization, that is not only their privilege but it is the road to their economic independence. By the tactics it is employing to obstruct the Farm board the United States Chamber of Commerce is not improving its standing with the public. It is to be hoped that Mr. Legge and his associates stand their ground and proceed with their duties so well initiated, ignoring opposition from whatever source and trusting to the president to protect them against political and other selfish influences that seek their undoing.

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION

Said Pussyfoot Johnson in a lecture delivered in San Antonio, Texas: "Prohibition has reached a serious crisis. Unless people are educated to the value of temperance, prohibition will fail. There are probably 30,000,000 young men and women in America who sneer at prohibition. The great moneyed interests of the nation are against prohibition. The metropolitan press is not. Every great city of the United States is dripping wet. This is a perilous hour."

Without accepting all this as proved or even subject to proof, it must be admitted that education is essential in the promotion of temperance. The arguments for and against prohibition in this country are often muddled. The arguers seem themselves not to know whether they are discussing temperance or the prohibition law. There are people on each side of the question who believe earnestly in temperance, who practice it in their own lives and who teach it to their children. More of such emphasis on temperance itself and on education for temperance would do this country a lot of good.

WHY PRISONS ARE FILLED

Anyone who thinks criminals are not being punished in this country ignores the statistics. Our total prison population, the National Society for Penal Information shows, has increased one-half in the last 10 years, and is growing now faster than ever. Take two typical federal prisons, those at Atlanta and Leavenworth. The former had 1,236 inmates in 1918. It has 3,323 now. The latter had 1,629 in 1918 and has 3,684 now. The capacity in both of these prisons, by the way, is supposed to be about one-half of the present population.

The situation is said to be worse in the state prisons and reformatories than in the federal institutions, with prisoners pouring in far beyond the ability of the institutions to provide them with proper accommodations and work to keep them busy. We have this situation in Wisconsin, both at Waupun and Green Bay.

If it is argued that the heavy increase in prison population is largely from offenses against prohibition, attention can also be called to the fact that the heaviest increase in Wisconsin has occurred since the repeal of the state prohibition act. Action against violators of prohibition in this state is confined to federal authorities and those convicted are sent to federal prisons. We can view the overcrowding of our penitentiaries according to our viewpoint or prejudices. It would probably require an extensive and thorough investigation to determine what are the actual causes.

Much as we may legitimately attribute many excesses to prohibition, we agree with Will Durant that most of the crime and recklessness of the decade has been due to a general letting down in moral standards, a widespread undermining of faith in spiritual and moral values, resulting from the experiences and disillusionments of the World War. Mr. Durant's philosophical observations along this as well as other lines are well worth any person's reading.

PAWING THE AIR.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, one of the shining lights of the "greatest deliberative body in the world", treated his associates recently to one of those flights of oratory which can probably only occur when a speaker's mind is not so much upon the sense of what he is saying as upon the beauty of the language he is trying to coin. He was denouncing the middlemen and here is his masterpiece: "I feel confident that this troop of pirates in the grain trade, these economic leeches in the north-west, these barnacles on the grain marketing ship, will be unhorsed." The St. Louis Post Dispatch remarks that these glowing words should be written in letters of gold beside another oratorical classic: "The chariot of anarchy is rolling onward and gnashing its teeth as it rolls."

There is still another statement made by a member of the English parliament who sought to divide the platform with the great Nye when he said: "I smell a rat. I see it floating through the air, and by the eternal, I will nip it in the bud."

While senators like Mr. Nye may take a lot of liberties with the king's English it cannot be doubted that his auditors understood the meaning he was trying to convey.

Although more horseroot is extracted in the United States than in any other country, none has been grown here except on an experimental scale.

Neither the Volstead nor any subsequent prohibition act specifically mentions the Philippines and therefore there is no prohibition in those islands.

The government of the United States cannot be sued without its own consent. Statutes, however, provide for suits for compensation of claims.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Metropolitan transportation is thought of in terms of speed. The subway and the elevated are pictured as typical of New York because they symbolize rapid transit.

Yet the lowly street car continues to carry its quota of intra-city travelers, although in this instance the quota is largely confined to the unhurried.

There is hardly any section of Manhattan that the surface lines fail to cross. They offer, too, perhaps the best view of those neighborhoods, if one has the leisure to use them.

SLOW SIGHT-SEEING
By transferring twice and paying three five-cent fares, one may journey slowly up Broadway from the Battery as far as No. 106, passing Wall street, the Woolworth tower, the soap-box forums of Union square, Madison square at Fifth avenue, and on through the cabaret belt past Columbia university and the uptown apartments of white-collar workers. Whether anyone ever had a day to devote to this trip is another matter.

Over on the east side is perhaps the longest continuous line in Manhattan. Starting at the postoffice downtown, it stretches up Third avenue to 125th street, across the lower fringe of Harlem to Amsterdam avenue and on to Port George, within a mile of the island's northern tip.

The shortest line is probably that in the west Bronx which covers less than a mile between the Burnside avenue subway station and a point near the Morris Heights station of the New York Central railroad. Until just recently, it had a competitor for shortness in a Brooklyn waterfront line, but that has been abandoned.

It was less than 15 years ago that the last horsecar in New York, operating near the Hudson river, was finally retired. The neighborhood spirit of horse-car travel then was carried over to the two Bronx and Brooklyn trolleys.

NEIGHBORLY TROLLEY
The Bronx trolley rocks along a tree-lined street of private homes and two-family houses, situated in isolated quiet between a steep hill at one end and the Harlem river at the other. Not only is its 10-cent fare an exception to the five-cent rate elsewhere in New York, but its day skipper, Andrew McCabe, and its night operator, Pat Clark (there is only one car), know the regular passengers and their commuting habits.

These two keep an eye on the front door of their customers. If one knows the neighborhood, he is momentarily due to leave for his office, he may wait for him in front of his house. That is only one of their acts of courtesy. Clark once caught a prowler whose movements, after alighting from the car, he watched because the man was strange to that part.

The Brooklyn line, 1.3 miles long, also was unique in charging a four-cent fare. The passengers were mostly labor employed in the Erie basin. The line finally succumbed to reciprocity imposed upon it two years ago.

Today's Anniversary

SOUTH CAROLINA SECEDES

On Dec. 20, 1860, South Carolina seceded from the Union.

The state long had been dissatisfied with the tariff policy of the federal government, and as early as 1823 the "South Carolina Exposition" was adopted by the legislature.

On the passage of the Clay tariff bill in 1832 a convention was called which declared that no clause of the constitution authorized such a tariff.

President Jackson was resolved to enforce the law, but a compromise averted an actual conflict. When President Lincoln was elected in 1860 a convention was called Dec. 20 which unanimously passed an ordinance of secession. The Civil War began the following April.

Today also is the anniversary of the adoption by the Senate of the state motto, "United we stand, divided we fall."

On Dec. 20, 1916, President Wilson issued his peace proposals to belligerents in the World War.

BATTILING WITH THE ODOR OF OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The superintendent of schools writes from a town in a nearby state:

A few years' experience in buying janitor's supplies for schools has convinced me that there is a wide field for graft and that the opportunity has not been wasted. In the matter of disinfectants and deodorants, for example, we have aromatic disinfectants, pine oil disinfectants and finally, the Coleman who would have you pay $2 to $4 a gallon for a formaldehyde solution whose water content he does not profess to know. I have paid exorbitant prices for cleaners with catchy trade names only to learn that I might have bought the same thing at a reasonable price under its common commercial name.

Can you tell me what may be used as a clean, cheap, effective deodorant in school toilets? What is your opinion of the use of sprays in school rooms as a preventative of disease?

If disinfectants, deodorants or cleansers must be purchased for use in the schools, why should not the chemistry and physics department of the schools advise what should be used? Are our public schools so poor?

I am sure that the head of the chemistry department can't give advice about such a thing? Is the teaching of physics in the school system so abstruse and impractical that the head of the physics department is unable to tell the purchasing agent what materials are best for cleansers? What earthly use is it to require a boy or girl to take a course in physics and a course in chemistry, as every school should require, and carefully avoid teaching the purchase of such a thing?

The great weakness in these science courses in our public schools is that the science teachers are too darned interested in mathematics. A reasonable amount of mathematics may be good for a pupil, but when the mathematics department gets thru with him it is regrettable that the physics or chemistry departments should feel in duty-bound to rub some more mathematics into the incipient pupil. Undoubtedly this obsession of pedagogues turns many a promising youth away from science, to the world's loss.

The graft superintendent has the temerity to imply is there, all right, maybe the grafters who make a fat thing out of it would call it legitimate graft. Like the famous Tammany politician who boasted of his grafting exploits but always insisted it was legitimate graft.

Hekum, bunkum and graft. The bunkum is the very thing that disinfectants are necessary in the schools; the bunkum is that when a disinfectant is to be used it must be a proprietary article, not a plain chemical compound of mixture.

There is no more need for disinfectants or deodorants in school than there is in the home.

Ordinary cleanliness and ordinary cleaning with ordinary cleansers will meet every possible requirement in school as it does in the home.

Even pity the children so unfortunate as to attend a school where a spray is used or the air impregnated with some mysterious odor or a stinkpot from the alleged health department is touched off now and then to "prevent disease."

Coffee Grounds in Sink

Our drain pipes were constantly giving trouble from obstruction by accumulations of greasy matter. Finally a plumber suggested that we throw our coffee grounds in the sink instead of putting them in the garbage pail. They have gone down the sink drain ever since, and our sink drains give us no more trouble. (Mrs. C. A. S.)

Answer—At this writing the sink appears to be the proper place to dispose of the coffee grounds. Plumbers are barred from direct voting.

Every Stove Should have a Stovepipe

I fixed our gas stove so it burns a pale blue flame 1 1/2 inches high and no yellow at all. I maintain that as the gas is all burnt up no stovepipe connection with flue or chimney is necessary. Am I right or wrong? (C. S.)

Answer—Wrong, brother. For health and safety every fuel burner should be equipped with a stovepipe or chimney to carry products of combustion out of the house. Natural ventilation thru cracks or crevices about windows and doors may be sufficient in many kitchen where gas or oil stoves are used for cooking, but even there a stovepipe connection with flue is always preferable.

Despite perfect regulation of the flame, there are many accidental chances of dangerous pollution of the air with carbon monoxide gas. Would you be willing to accept the air of a room if you were assured that it had been breathed by a number of people in the room? Well, one small gas flame produces as much carbon dioxide as several people do. Gas stove dealers who assure you that no pipe is necessary with this or that kind of gas stove are either ignorant or dishonest. Any health authority will tell you that a stovepipe is always advisable; in some cities, indeed, the use of a pipeless gas stove is prohibited by law.

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Moulder

"FROM OUR FILES"

Quite a few newspapers are in the habit of running a column headed "From Our Files," in which they print items that appeared in the paper 75 or 50 or 25 years ago. Susan Erz has applied the idea to fiction. Her new novel, "The Galaxy," almost literally came from the files of the newspapers of the past fifty years.

I don't know what method Miss Erz followed in collecting her material for this novel but I can imagine no other system than that of deliberately going to the newspaper files and laboriously taking from them the thousands of facts that are reproduced in the book. Facts, facts, facts—most of them woven into the novel not because they did materially to our sense of the reality of the characters presented, but printed apparently for their own sake. A fact is a fact to Susan Erz and she piles mountains of them on other mountains of them. All she seems to require is that the items shall fall within the years covered by her book. That condition being fulfilled, she does not play favorites among her facts—she sets them down quite impartially.

Most of the facts of course refer to the English scene because the characters are English and most of the action takes place there. Apparently Miss Erz had access to the files of an English newspaper in which little was printed about America. But there are a few facts that filter through about this country—such things as the assassination of McKinley. These she drags in almost by the hair and sets down conscientiously. She seems to feel that she must get all the facts in, that her novel must be a conscientious review of the newspaper files for a period some fifty years.

Dull? Of course that makes her story dull. Nine tenths of the facts cited have no more to do with the lives of the characters than they have with the Einstein theory. They are merely facts, dead material that is injected into the story and that never is galvanized into life. St. John Ervine, who is usually levelheaded, ending in 1933, but death claimed him a few weeks ago, almost before he had gotten started.

And just his appearance on the floor of the senate has decided two things in the minds of many of the gallery gods:

First, he is the best looking senator of them all.

Second, he is perhaps the best dressed member of that body.

In fact, the successor to the venerable Burton looks more like a movie hero than a United States senator. His profile will compare favorably with that of any screen idol.

His good looks are exceeded only by his ability to dress. His suits, all ways of conservative pattern, destroy the last claims that Senators Hefflin, Cutting and Young Bob La Follette have to being the senate's sartorial models. And if he ever decides to add spurs to his wardrobe, Speaker Nixie Longworth had better look to his laurels. McCulloch might then lay claims to being the best dressed man in congress.

BORN ON FARM
A man of splendid intellect and a tireless worker is the new senator from Ohio.

Born on a farm in his native state November 27, 1889, he attended Ohio state university and then studied law at Western Reserve university. During his school days he won the reputation of being a deep student. In law school he was looked upon as being one of the most thorough and conscientious members of his class.

He brought those qualities into public life. His friends say that his greatest fault is that he takes life too seriously. If he has any hobby outside his family, it is work and more of it.

He doesn't play golf nor is he enthusiastic about any sport. He doesn't frequent clubs at leisure moments. The only "bad habit" he has acquired within the last few years is smoking. Occasionally he indulges in a cigar.

Senator McCulloch is married and has two children. Kathryn, 21, is an accomplished musician and has just been graduated from a fashionable school in New York. Hugh, 17, is a senior in high school.

COSTLY FOG IS LIFTED BY WIND SHIFT

Ships Preparing to Quit Harbor as Mist Is Thinned After 4 Days

New York—(AP)—After lying at anchor in mid-channel since Wednesday when she collided with the steamship Fort Victoria, the Clyde liner Algonquin passed Quarantine enroute to her pier at 6:15 this morning as the four-day fog lifted.

The ship's 129 passengers had been stranded aboard the vessel since the collision which damaged the Algonquin's bow and sent the Fort Victoria to the bottom. A number of other ships, taking advantage of the lifting of the fog, also headed up the harbor to their piers.

Shifting winds came today to lift the fog blockade from New York harbor after a four-day siege during which one liner was sunk and shipping was brought to a standstill.

Travel by water or air was virtually suspended in the vicinity of the city yesterday. Not a ship entered or left the harbor before midnight and not a single airplane took off or landed at any of the airports.

Five in the day four ships lifted through the thinning mists but 15 others either swung at anchor outside the harbor or clung to their piers, unwilling to risk the fate of the Furness-Bermuda liner Fort Victoria, which was rammed and sunk Wednesday by the Clyde liner Algonquin off Ambrose channel lightship.

The lighthouse service has ordered buoys placed on the wreck of the Fort Victoria which lies half a mile west of the entrance to Ambrose channel and is a menace to navigation.

The wreck lies in 50 feet of water and her bulk is awash at low tide, but invisible at high tide. Weather said the salvage would not pay the cost of raising her from that depth.

Boats are to be made to salvage 27 sacks of mail still in the bulk. Fogs picked up 14 sacks which floated clear when the ship sank.

Of the 250 passengers taken off the Fort Victoria, 165 were on their way to Bermuda today aboard the sunken vessel's sister ship, the Fort St. George.

Money losses occasioned by the fog

Are Indicted

Daniel R. Crissinger, above, of Maryland, U. S. controller of the currency, during the Harding administration, and Congressman Frederick N. Elkhart of Maryland, below, have been indicted by a District of Columbia grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. Both were directors of the F. H. Smith Company, a Washington investment house, now being investigated. Elkhart recently resigned from the directorate.

In addition to the sinking of the Fort Victoria, valued at $1,500,000 were estimated to run into many hundreds of thousands of dollars. One large item was perishable food stuffs held in ships unable to reach their piers. Another is that to commercial air mail lines which estimate that revenue approximating $500,000 has been lost while their planes were fog-bound in the east and held to their ports by storms in the west. Loss of interest to banks through delay in the transmission of funds and securities was said by clearing house officials to amount to nearly $2,500 a day.

MARINES APPEAR TO BE DOING GOOD JOB IN TURBULENT HAITI

They've Killed Over a Thousand Haitians, Reports Indicate

BY MILTON BRONNER

Washington — For a good many years now our gallant U. S. marines have been killing those pesky Haitians for their own good.

Nowhere else in the world have our brave boys so convincingly demonstrated their superiority over a foreign populace. They have killed some 3500 Haitians, according to the secretary of the navy's report for 1929 and only about 1500 according to the report of a Senate investigating committee.

Only a dozen marines have been killed by Haitians and although that was enough to provoke sensational stories of atrocities and human sacrifices in this country the ratio of casualties shows what our leather-necks can do when fighting for their country.

Of course there are those in Washington who think it wasn't necessary to kill so many Haitians—Senator King and Senator Borah, for instance. But for all your correspondents has ever been able to get out of the State or Navy department, the killings were a blessed boon to Haiti. They occupied in the carrying out of the American occupation beginning in 1915 and for the last ten years, until recently, few further killings have been necessary because of the thoroughness with which the Haitians were taught their lesson.

The immediate background is still a little vague. One cannot be quite sure about official claims that the Haitians love us and our occupation and regard Brig-Gen. John H. Russell, the American high commissioner and so-called dictator, as Santa Claus himself.

Even if it is assumed that the Haitian landlords are a bunch of landis whom every 100 per cent American should hate, it must be recalled that General Smedley Butler is reported as having explained in a Pittsburgh speech the other night that in Haiti the marines always formally branded as bandits those who opposed American policies. Even President Hoover declares rejection of the Haitian problem "still obscure."

But the previous facts in the situation are well known. Marine killings and other tactics of subjugation robbed the Haitians of their traditional pastime of killing each other. There is plenty of debate as to whether occupation has done the island any great good, but it brought an unprecedented period of comparative tranquility. The incumbent Haitian president, Borno, has been kept in office by the American bayonets which gave him his job, but of the 27 Haitian presidents who preceded him 15 were driven from office and several were murdered. The mass of Haitians are about as backward as can be and there was a time when even a cannibal or two attained the presidency.

Strangely enough, however, the occupation coincided with attempts toward an American treaty which would have given up control of the country and allowed us to establish naval and military bases. Also, the Haitian constitution, which was promptly abolished, provided that no foreigners should hold land there despite the fact that there are some valuable plantations. The immediate pretext for the marine landing was the assassination and cutting to pieces of President Sam, a blood-thirsty gent whose recent massacres had irritated his subjects.

CONGRESS WAS FIRED
The Americans disabused the Haitian congress, abolished the constitution, installed a president of their own and took full fiscal and virtual political control of the country. As a substitute for Congress, which was dissolved because it refused to adopt the new constitution which we handed it, we created an "executive council" of 21 members to elect and assist the president. At last reports 14 of the 21 were Borno's relatives. The marines staged a "national referendum" to put over the new constitution. In the effective manner which has been explained by General Butler, and the official report on the vote showed 93,294 in favor and 759 against. Whether any marines were court-martialed for allowing these 759 votes is not known, but there have been many loud horse-laughes at the figures.

A few weeks ago President Borno, who is commonly supposed to take his orders from Russell, announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election in 1930. Subsequent developments in Haiti are being explained in current dispatches.

BETTER OUTLOOK FOR U. S. FARMER

apparent, most of the time having been consumed in brooding over organization troubles and conflicts between various elements in the grain business. It is significant that the cries of the radical senators against the farm board have recently been diminished whereas Chairman Legge is himself outspoken in his criticism of the attitude of the chamber of commerce of the United States as reflected by some of the grain groups within its organization.

The more the farm board is attacked by the United States Chamber of Commerce which represents organized business, the more popular the farm board will become in the eyes of the western senators. Mr. Legge has shown himself to be independent-minded so far as all elements in the situation are concerned. He has warned congress that he will not be intimidated and he has told the organized groups outside of congress the same thing.

HAS HARD JOB

His is perhaps the most difficult job in Washington at present, but the most important development is that he is gaining ground in congress and that the board is going ahead in an effort to stabilize agriculture, even if it affects adversely some of the middle-men engaged in agricultural operations.

This is small comfort for the middle-man, but it is what those who have had the upper hand in congress on farm legislation in recent years have been insisting upon.

The farm board was not expected to find everything harmonious in the task of setting up of large cooperative organizations or in the lending of money to them. The question of whether agriculture will be better off under a system of government aid and the extension of loans at low rates of interest all depends upon what kind of management the

SAFETY ZONES IN SNOW BATTLES ARE FIXED AT SCHOOL

Granting that snowballing is one of the great American sports and the right of every red blooded school boy, snowballing is one of the permitted forms of amusement at Roosevelt Junior High school, though only in designated areas. A safety zone in front of the school building has been erected, and anyone seized with the desire to hurl one of the round balls of frozen liquid must first, if he is to stay within the law, survey his location. If he finds himself, when overruled with the fitness of planting a lump of snow on the left ear of a comrade, located in front of the school, it behooves him to transport himself to the field in back of the school, where the snow balls may be thrown with impunity and the sanction of the school administration.

POOR COST CITY OVER $2,000 IN NOVEMBER

The amount expended by the city for the maintenance of poor during November was $2,850, according to the monthly report of H. G. Schneider, commissioner of the poor. Of this amount $304.85 was spent on the farm organization will ultimately provide.

Just now there is a tendency to let the farm work out its problems without interference by congress, though conservatives and radicals realize that if the farm board fails, the alternative will either be the Mary-Hausmanism or the expert delirium plan. The board is known to have the full sympathy and cooperation of president Hoover, who however has not been free from petitions from interested groups to change the farm board policies.

The largest items of expense at the city home were $129.85 for groceries, $125.51 for beds, blankets and dry goods, $96 for mattresses and $74.43 for outside help. There were 13 inmates at the city home during the month, and 113 families were given aid.

Wi-Mi Club Holds Its Yule Party

THE annual Christmas party of the Wi-Mi club, composed of the employees of the Wisconsin Power company, took place Thursday night in the Crystal room of the Conway hotel. After the dinner the guests gathered around a fireplace at one end of the room where Christmas stockings had been hung for each member of the group. These were filled with candy, nuts and toys. Gifts were exchanged and court whist was played. Prizes were won by Irma Wiseman, Altha Fellers and Marie Hardt.

Decorations were in Christmas colors and included centerpieces of lighted trees, candles and unique favors of apples made to represent Santa Claus. Plans were made for a Santa Claus parade on the streets of Appleton. Curved Flat Hipline

A charming adaptation of Princess silhouette with diagonal seams that emphasize the smart curved flat hipline. The hip bands merge into panels at either side of front and at center-back, giving considerable length to the figure.

Circular insets at sides and a pocket at center-front, add a delightful flared fullness to hem.

The V-neckline shows Spanish influence in scarf tie with fringed ends. Sleeves are fitted with darts below the elbows.

The medium chosen for style No. 3137 is a broad, draped silk, indispensable in the smart woman's wardrobe this season. It can be worn so nicely for a shopping trip and then to luncheon or an afternoon game of bridge. It is also lovely for office or travel, particularly in dark brown or raisin tones.

It is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

It is almost like making a one-piece dress, with the circular godet and circular side sections stitched to dress following perforated lines for same. The saving is immense.

Black crepe satin can be cleverly manipulated, using the dull surface to scarf collar and circular insets of skirt.

Printed transparent velvet in dark wine tone is very effective for afternoons.

Royal blue sheer velvet is stunning for formal afternoons and Sunday night supper wear.

Canton crepe, crepe de chine, crepe marocain, crepe Roma and wool crepe appropriate.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"No, Ted isn't here," Sue answered Geraldine Parker. "Is there any message I can give him?"

"No. I just wanted to talk to him." The receiver clicked and Sue, replacing her own more slowly, smiling firmly.

"The days when Theodore Merriam ran at your slightest whisper are over," thought Sue. "I hope Sarah gets Ted to invest his money in Becker steel before you see him, though."

Sarah was successful. Her description of the best buy on the market had amused Ted, who had half laughingly decided that he would spend a few hundred dollars into the same melting pot.

"Will you let me go along when you do it and help me invest a hundred or two?" Sarah had asked. "Could you go about 10 o'clock tomorrow morning?" And Ted had agreed readily.

When Geraldine called the next night, he answered the telephone and, listening, guessed what was being said.

"I'm sorry, Geraldine, but I'm busy tonight. I couldn't possibly see you... In trouble?... But what about Clinger? Can't he help you?"

"I see... Well, make it a nine o'clock then and I'll call at your house... See here, Geraldine, I'm not meeting you in front of any hotel. If you want to talk to me you'll do it in the open. Well then, if you insist, The Jackson Hotel at nine."

"I think you're crazy to see her," Sue told him.

"But she's in trouble," he began, a little sheepishly.

"I know. That's what every girl says. I imagine she isn't. It's probably Clinger. I wouldn't even be surprised if she wants to borrow money."

"Sue! You know better than that!"

If he knew how true her assertion was, she missed. "No, I don't. I know it. She asked Jimmy Hayden to speak to you about it. Has he done it?"

"Not yet. But if she needs money, she's really in some kind of a mess." His blue eyes were perplexed. "After all, if I can help—"

"I think it would be better for you not to see her, Ted. She does not play fair and she probably lies." Sue changed the subject. "Did you put your order through for Becker cars?"

He nodded. "Good commission on it, too. I used it for stock. If Geraldine wants money, she came at a poor time, for I haven't any loose cash around."

Sue said nothing. It wouldn't do to let him know that she and Sarah had formed a protective society to save his bank account and rescue him from Geraldine.

Interesting Menus

By Sister Mary

NEA Service Writer
The success of any holiday or guest dinner depends largely upon the roast. Each roast has its own particular sauce or gravy, which is best suited to serve with it.

The accompaniment chosen for each variety of meat is important. A roast without the proper contrasting flavor is as incomplete as apple pie without cheese.

The following list suggests suitable combinations for the roasts usually chosen for festive occasions:

Roast beef (rolled or standing) is served with Yorkshire pudding and horseradish and a brown gravy—or the natural meat juices, if the roast is "done rare."

Filet of beef is served with a tart spicy jam or conserve and mushroom sauce.

Lamb is served with mint jelly.

Three tablespoons "drippings," 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Pour off all but 3 tablespoons fat of the drippings in the roaster. Put roaster over a low fire and stir in flour, salt and pepper mixed and sifted. Stir until bubbly and beginning to brown. Slowly add water, stirring constantly. Stir until boiling point is reached and boil two or three minutes. If the gravy is not perfectly smooth, it should be strained and reheated before serving.

Chopped cooked mushrooms can be added to make mushroom sauce, although real mushroom sauce is made with brown stock in place of water.

One-half to one cup orange juice is substituted for part of the water to make orange sauce for duck.

More or less water in proportion to the flour will give a thinner gravy as preferred.

currant jelly or cranberry jelly and brown gravy or hot mint sauce.

Pork is served with apple or cranberry sauce.

Ham is served with browned pineapple or tart relish and hot raisin sauce.

Turkey or chicken is served with cranberry sauce or jelly and giblet gravy.

waiting Geraldine, and proceeded to follow him for half an hour.

"We might as well turn back," Sue was suggesting, when suddenly a car swung out of a by-road and blocked the second-hand model which they were following.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

At last the doll was fixed up right and Clowry said, "Now she's a sight that any little girl will love. I'm glad I sewed her dress." The doll said, "Thank you," with a smile. "I think I'll rest a little while. It isn't long until old Santa Claus starts off, I guess."

So to a little bed she went and dreamed about the big adventure that would come on Christmas morn'g. My, what a lovely thought. A voice then rang out loud and clear. "Hey, Clowry Tynmites! Come here! The windup toys are out and there are things they must be taught."

'Twas Scouty who had yelled so loud. And Clowry joined the Tyn crowd. "My goodness," he exclaimed. "I've never saw so many toys. I'm glad I've helped old Santa Claus with all his wondrous work, because 'twill bring a heap of pleasure to a lot of girls and boys."

"Well, there is some work to do," snappy Cappy. "And it's up to you to lend a hand. Please wind some toys and see if they will run. You see 'twould be an awful fright if any were not working right. Just wind them up and make them walk. You'll find it lots of fun."

"Oh, sure, you can depend on me," said Clowry. "Let me have a key." And then he started winding things. His key went clickety-click. The other Tynites did the same and 'cross the flood the queer toys came. "Oh, watch them," shouted Cappy. "They are getting on real slick."

It was a funny sight to see. Each Tyn busy as could be and all the windup toys a-walking round upon the floor. Old Santa shouted, "Well, there's lots of fun in store for real good tots." He watched the Tynites and the toys and then began to roar.

(The Tynmites get the reindeers in the next story.)

MEMBERSHIP FOR LIFE GRANTED BY MISSION GROUP

A life membership in the Women's Missionary conference was presented to Mrs. F. C. Reuter, by the Women's Missionary society of First English Lutheran church at the meeting held Thursday afternoon at the church. The gift consists of a certificate of membership, a membership pin, a vote in the general conference, and a place on the honor roll which appears in the women's department of the Lutheran Standard.

The money which the local society gave for this membership is sent in and invested as an endowment fund, the interest of which is used for some missionary purpose. This year the money is being used to pay the salary of Miss Irene Mellenbach, San Juan, Tex., a missionary among the Mexicans.

SOCIETY PICKS NEW OFFICERS

Election of officers of the Christian Mothers society of Sacred Heart church took place Sunday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. Theresa Bestler was reelected president for another year. Mrs. Alice Schmidt was chosen to succeed Mrs. Joseph Hoffensperger as vice president and Mrs. John Knijft will take the place of Mrs. Louis Wilson as secretary of the society. A new office, that of treasurer, was added to the list this year and it will be filled by Mrs. Charles Schrimpt.

NEW INVENTION TO HELP SELL TALKIES IN FOREIGN LANDS

Revocalization Process Makes American Actors Talk Any Language

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929, By, Cons. Press

New York — Yankee ingenuity meets obstacles to the foreign distribution of American talking pictures by a "revocalization" process which promises to save the industry from serious impairment due to the falling of foreign demand.

It is now possible to produce pictures in which American actors, knowing not a single word of any foreign language, speak fluently in French, Spanish, Italian or German, with perfect synchronization of lip movements and voice. It has been done and audiences never have suspected that the sound they heard was not uttered by the screen personage.

Equity magazine announces details of the process in its December number and inquires by this writer not only have substantiated this account, but have disclosed a concentration on other re-vocalization processes which indicate that the day of the screen "ghost" has arrived. Producers may now make the most profitable picture of the most alluring story, preserving the best features of each. This is believed to mean a "come-back" for screen actors whose voices failed to qualify in the talkies, and the reinstatement of foreign stars, barred from the talking films by their inability to master English.

Edwin Hopkins, New York inventor, who has connected many years of technical problems of the state and who has been associated with leading producers, worked out the new re-vocalization scheme.

COSTS ARE LOW

The process requires only one arrangement of scenery and lighting and eliminates many details of overhead, with production costs much lower than those of the present methods of making an entirely separate foreign language picture.

If it is desired to issue a French version of picture, for instance, a cast of French actors is assembled. In preliminary rehearsals, the American actors familiarize themselves, so far as possible with the French text, phonetically printed, so that they can approximate correct pronunciation. The English version is then rehearsed, the actors both sound and light cameras. The American actors then perform the French version, reading the lines from large phonetically written placards, or accepting promptings from a person standing by the text. The sound camera is not working at this stage, but the light camera is. This performance is to yield a new picture version—minus sound—but with the action carefully paced to the foreign speech. By preliminary study and rehearsal, and the use of phonetic text, it has been found that this pacing can be managed perfectly.

The French actors can then sit in easy chairs, or on an inexpensive wooden bench, if necessary, and read the French dialogue. They do not need to concentrate on exact syntax, but to keep as nearly as possible to the pace of the pictorial readings. At this stage, Mr. Hopkins' new miracle machine takes a hand. Either film margin or disc records may be taken to the laboratory, and the Latin speech grafted onto the Nordic actor. This is, the new invention makes possible a perfect synchronization of the French speech with the lip movement of the American actor.

MAY HELP OLD STARS

Thus American film stars who have recruited followings in any foreign country may now blossom out with the gift of tongues, like the boy in the advertisement who took a course of ten lessons. Emil Jennings, who could not learn to speak finished English, may re-vocalize a German version of a film for an American audience.

News of the invention comes at a time when the problem of foreign sales is the one most urgent concern with every leading producing company. Foreign distribution has not only had to meet the rising hostility of foreign interests and foreign officialdom, but audiences of other lands naturally have not been greatly interested in performances in a language which they could not understand.

With an investment of nearly $500,000,000, the motion picture is now listed as the third of American industries. Other industries have been concerned about the possible collapse of foreign sales, as the movies have been an invaluable aid to commerce abroad, with their alluring screen parade of luxuries, made in America and for sale at a price.

Some industrial experts have estimated that, in their entirety, the movies abroad have been equivalent to an energetic sales force of 200,000 men. If foreign talkie distribution makes its expected comeback, with English speaking stars becoming multi-lingual, it will be an event of major industrial and commercial importance.

NO OPPOSITION TO NEW BUS SCHEDULE

No opposition was expressed at the hearing in Milwaukee yesterday before the Wisconsin Railroad commission on the application for permission to operate through bus lines from Green Bay to Madison, by the way of Appleton and Fond du Lac. The companies requesting the hearing also asked a permit to establish service between Appleton and Milwaukee and Chicago by way of Sheboygan, between Milwaukee, Chicago and Sheboygan to Green Bay, from Mountain and Marinette by way of Appleton and Fond du Lac.

The permit is granted the new bus service will be effective on Jan. 1, 1930, it was stated this morning.

THICK FOG HOVERS OVER NEW YORK FOR ONE ENTIRE WEEK

Thousands of Dollars Are Lost Through Forced Delay in Traffic

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York — (CPA) — For the seventh successive day, fog, thick and dark, held New York in its murky grip Thursday, while ferry and tugboat captains swore roundly and shipping companies counted a mounting toll of losses which already exceed $2,000,000.

The sinking of the Furness Bermuda Steamship Fort Victoria in the outer harbor, after it had been rammed by the Clyde liner Algonquin, entailed a loss of $1,900,000, without counting the cost of the cargo.

With navigation of incoming and outgoing steamships practically suspended, it is estimated that the delay of ocean liners and mails and of perishable freight on railroad floats tied up by the fog has caused a loss of at least $1,000,000.

Santa Claus has been thrown completely off schedule, as a dozen liners carrying thousands of bags of Christmas mail have been forced to anchor at quarantine down the bay to await the lifting of the heavy mists.

Broadcasting companies crossed several thousand dollars off their commercial accounts when all entertainment programs were chased off the air for three hours late Wednesday during the period that SOS calls were being dashed from the sinking Fort Victoria and other messages were being sent out by the radio headquarters of the third naval district. Programs continued to go out on the networks of land wires, but they were shut down on stations in New York and Philadelphia.

The fog and rain have seriously interfered with air traffic, as well as that on land and sea in the New York area. Flying at most of the airports in this district has been suspended for long periods during the last few days, with consequent disruption of the air mail service.

Individual losses cannot be computed but they represent no small item. Some two or three thousand steamship passengers, mostly Americans returning for the Christmas holidays, have been held on board the fog-bound liners. Many of them missed their railroad connections for points in the west. Others missed important business appointments which meant dollars and cents to them.

American Girl Helps With Mexican Historical Mural

Mexico City — (AP) — What is called the world's largest single mural fresco, a pretentious effort depicting the history of Mexico, is taking form on the central staircase of the government palace here.

A central motif of the mural is the horses and masked humans used by Cortez' small bunch of followers.

Horses, never before seen on the American continent, struck terror to the hearts of the Aztec warriors, who believed man and horse united and invincible inasmuch as the Indians, with their long war spears, could not unseat the mailed Spaniards.

New York — Offhand it would seem that beautiful college girls are not so dumb as chorus girls. In an intelligence test six Hunter college undergraduates beat six chorus girls, 84 to 50. But it developed that the chorus team consisted of college graduates. The 50 questions included such things as the critique of pure reason and the originator of many Shakespearean plots. Sundry self constituted judges voted that the contest was a tie in charm.

Short Orders, Boiled Dinner and Stew. 35c. Damos Lunch.

The walls on which the mural is being painted are in the very center of the area where most of Mexico's recorded history has been enacted. The present palace was constructed above the ruins of the palaces of the Aztecs who were conquered by Cortez in 1521, and it is recorded that the Aztecs built upon the same spot where the central seat of government of the Toltecs, their predecessors, was located.

HUNTING SEASON FOR DUCKS ENDS AT SUNDOWN TONIGHT

Conflicting Reports Are Received on Success of Hunters

Madison — (AP) — At sundown, today, the 1929 duck hunting season comes to an end over Wisconsin. The season has been open since Sept. 16.

The 1929 duck hunting season in Wisconsin was one of conflicting reports, conservation department heads said. From some parts of the state reports came to the conservation commission of excellent shooting and from others people complained of the worst hunting in years.

Most places where people complained about duck hunting are located on large lakes or along the shores of Lake Michigan and the poor hunting is attributed by the game heads to the two terrific gales at the height of the duck season. Hunters claim that these two bad storms either caused the ducks to settle on smaller marshes and lakes, or to continue their southward flight without stopping on the big lakes.

"On certain days, particularly those misty, blustery mornings in the forepart of November, the best hunting in years was reported from some place," the conservation summary said. "Around the Madison lakes there were some days when wardens reported that nearly everyone had good shooting and that limit kills were frequent."

The 1929 season is the first time the Wisconsin has experienced a best day for ducks. There has been no hunting on Wednesday this year and "the conservation commission has been particularly pleased with the general observation and the attitude of cooperation on the part of hunters towards the new provisions in the law."

December 31 this year is the last day upon which Wisconsin hunters can have ducks or other kinds of game in cold storage. This applies to game killed outside of Wisconsin as well as inside. The cold storage houses have been informed that they must get rid of all their game in storage by December 31.

Norris Chief Cause Of Anti-Hoover Coalition

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — During the recent period of the Progressive-Democratic coalition's success in controlling the Senate it must have occurred to many persons to wonder why no corresponding coalition had been organized in the House.

There are only 96 men in the Senate and yet 15 or 16 Republicans there have been found willing to join the insurgent group in voting with the Democrats on the tariff bill. But there are 435 members of the House and although there are two or three who sometimes get up and deliver about one thing or another there does not appear to be one single insurgent. That is, not one who dares consistently to defy his party organization.

SAME VOTER DIFFERENT RESULTS

Although it is in Wisconsin most satisfactory to the administration and Joe Grundy, it has its strange features. When we consider that the same voters who elect the radical or progressive senators also elect the congressmen it does seem as if states such as Wisconsin, Nebraska and the Dakotas, each of which has two insurgent Republican senators, would produce a few congressmen who could whomp up another little revolt in the House.

The answer may be that there is only one George Norris of Nebraska. This coalition in the Senate might have developed without the Norris leadership, but perhaps not. At any rate, it seems as if wherever Norris goes he organizes an insurgent group to cooperate with the Democrats and lick the tar out of the standard Republicans. It was he who was to blame for the only effective insurgent movement the House has had for many decades and now, in the same way, he is in command in the Senate.

Of course it's a harder job in the House than in the Senate. In that huge and cumbersome body control has passed into the hands of three or four men who run the show, generally taking orders from the administration. These men can and do prevent members from offering amendments and obtaining votes on measures. Debate is severely restricted.

Any Republican with a passion for insurgency must cut loose from his party banner. It's easy enough to fish the other party, but it takes plenty of courage to fish his own machine. The congressman who consistently balks—and there isn't any now—won't ever be able to name any more postmasters. The only perk for him will come from the butcher shop.

Norris went for 12 years in the House, in light of which his party had control, without a single trace of patronage. He began his insurance company by offering a salary increase, but he saved a dollar. The rest he put back at him by closing the life counter to him. Norris failed to capitulate. In time he got back at the House machine itself.

He had to go it alone for a long time, but finally an insurgent union of 30 or 40 members developed around him. It was enough to combine with the Democrats to unseat the moderate Speaker Joe Cannon and elect the House rules after a history fight. It was enough to put a stop to the free list in the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill at the Ways and Means committee, and to stick on a stiff duty at the side of the tariff.

Most importantly, it brought about the Payne-Aldrich investigation in the Taft administration. The Payne-Aldrich investigation of its time. The paymasters but the case all framed for a whitewash. A committee was to be appointed by the speaker and the president of the Senate and everything was guaranteed to turn out all right. Norris, by a clever maneuver, defeated the attempts to hogtie him and slipped in a motion to have the

CHICAGO PLAN GROUP FACING EXTINCTION

Chicago — (AP) — The Chicago Plan commission—responsible for many of the city's civic improvement projects—today faced abolition.

An appropriation of $40,000 allotted to the commission was missing from the funds approved for the commission's office by the finance committee of the city council yesterday. Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the commission, described the finance committee's action as equivalent to abolishing the board if the commissioner's appropriation is approved by the council.

Meanwhile, James S. Simpson, chairman of the commission and president of Marshall Field and Co., it was said, had indicated a movement to save the organization organized in 1909 by the late Charles S. Wacker.

Investigations elected by the House. The coalition then elected men who meant business. After an odorous scandal, Hallinger was driven from office.

LITTLE INSURGENCE NOW

In the years of Republican control since the Taft administration members have sometimes insured, notably some from Wisconsin under Congressman Nelson. But not effectively. These latter-day House insurgents have never been able to relinquish their concern about patronage.

Any congressman prepared to follow in the Norris footsteps will have to stand up time and again and "raise hell." He will be run over by the machine time and again and his loss of patronage will lose him a certain number of votes in his district. He may or may not be defeated for re-election but he attracts a few supporters. His life will be lonely.

And so far, since Norris, no one has dared to face the odds.

STATIONS IN FIGHT FOR RADIO CHANNEL

First Legal Fight on Validity of Law to Be Taken to Courts

Washington—(AP)—The first legal attack on the validity of the Davis amendment to the radio law, involving a fight of six stations for the same wavelength, is to be threshed out in the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

The challenge of the Davis amendment, keystone of the reallocation in 1923 of broadcasting stations, is made by the Westinghouse company in its appeal from the refusal of the federal radio commission to allow station KYY, Chicago, to continue to operate on 1,020 kilocycles.

Acting upon the company's application for renewal of license, the commission approved the license in general but stipulated that the 1,020 kilocycle channel is properly assigned to the second radio zone rather than the fourth zone in which the station is located.

The commission says that the channel was one of eight cleared wavelengths allotted to the second zone in the reallocation. The second zone not needing all of the eight channels at the time, it was temporarily "loaned" to the fourth zone and assigned to the Chicago station. The company now claims "loaned" to the second zone, half-time assignment on the 1,160 kilocycle channel.

The Westinghouse company contends that the amendment is unconstitutional "in that it is not authorized by the commerce clause of the constitution that no person be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law or without just compensation." It declares that the license to use the channel was issued without qualification or restriction.

In the meantime, four other stations in the second zone have applied for the channel. They are WCAL, Philadelphia; WPCN, Philadelphia; WXYZ, Detroit; WLEW, New City, Pa. A fifth station, WLAB, Lexington, Ky., in the third zone, also has asked for the channel.

TRAMP LANGUAGE REVEALED

Appearance of the Abraham-man's name, the new Birmingham, England, news sheet for tramps, has not only originated one of the most unique publications in the world, but also revealed a language that has a place alone. "Abraham-man" is slang for vagabond. The paper is a single sheet of typed matter, evidently produced on a cheap duplicating machine. The price is one "clack," the equivalent of two cents. The newspaper contains information about "fishmen's theatres" (prize-herry swaggers) (hawkers) and other itinerant visitors. The best of the "wool-holes" (workhouses) are given honorable mention and all the "trampy" water towns where the poor like dilute hawker and tramp are listed. The "scraper" (pavement artist) is informed where he can loan chalked pictures.

Gigolos, Or Male Dancing Partners, Hail From Russia

BY CHARLES R. FERRIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Neenah—(AP)—Professional male dancing partners, commonly known as "gigolos," are probably nowhere as numerous or prosperous as much as in Berlin.

The fact that Germany has over 2,000,000 more women than men explains the abundance of these light-footed experts in scores of jazz emporiums. Berlin recently crowned its "gigolo" craze with a song and a dance about a popular hit about him has become a popular hit.

The Berlin gigolo, or "Eltzener," as he is dubbed in German, is rarely a Teuton. Germans generally are not good dancers. Neither are they sufficiently romantic—a most essential qualification for a successful gigolo.

Most of Berlin's gigolos hail from Russia. Scores of them were formerly dashing young Cossack officers.

Not a few pride themselves on being descendants of the Romanoff family. Some are even successful in making their matronly partners believe that they are grand-dukes or princes.

Their partners usually wax violent when they hear tales of how the Bolsheviks stripped them of fabulous wealth. This story usually softens the lady's heart to the extent of a fee of fifty marks instead of the regular twenty at the end of an evening which his "divine" dancing made her feel 20 years younger.

Fifty marks, the equivalent of $12, by no means the best honorarium for eliciting 20 years off a partner's life. To an amateur gigolo who gives up a 60 mark a week job as ribbon salesman to become a "jewelry expert" (gigolos are supposed to become such), such honorariums mean butter for their bread. But among Berlin's "Eltzener" elite are not a few to whom the "profession" has brought "cake" with which they embarked upon a life of luxury and ease.

Just how many of them reaped a harvest of gold, thanks to the open-handed gullibility of American widows or "grass-widows," is not a matter of record. Rumors, however, have it that American dollars have bulged many a gigolo's pocket since their prohibition started the American exodus to the less arid capitals of Europe.

The Berlin gigolo's height of ambition, of course, is "big game" and

PARISIANS WEARING WOODEN NECKLACES

Paris—(AP)—This must be the wooden anniversary of costume jewelry.

That statement is inspired by the amount of brightly colored "junk," intrinsically speaking, which smart women are wearing draped around their necks.

A couple of yards of intertwined dark blue and natural colored wooden discs is a permissible ornament with the silk dresses and suits Parisians are wearing for late summer.

Other color combinations for the wooden necklaces are jade green and black and yellow, black and white. The discs, thin as wafers and cut with fancy edges, are sold by the yard now in French department stores. Despite their inexpensive character and wide appeal smart women seem to be undiscouraged and go right on trying to evolve new color combinations and fancy effects.

The paste ornaments, flower and water beads brilliantly dyed, seem to be waning rapidly in popularity as summer wanes. Opponents of the less restrained styles in costume jewelry are wishing a speedy death for both styles.

Turks Island, W. I.—(AP)—Salt from this island will shortly be shipped 4,000 miles to British Columbia for use in packing fish. Hitherto all salt for that purpose has come from California.

"MONEY COULDN'T BUY NEW HEALTH KONJOLA GAVE!"

Grateful Man Had Spent Much Money Seeking Relief Before He Found Konjola

MR. HENRY KNOOP

"I am truly thankful for the wonderful relief Konjola brought me," said Mr. Henry Knop, Clutter, Ia. "I had suffered from stomach trouble for a number of years. For months everything that I ate caused suffering. Gas formed, and awful pains ensued. My kidneys also were in a very poor condition, and I had spent a lot of money in a vain search for relief.

"I was just about ready to give up hope of ever finding relief when a friend urged me to give this new Konjola a trial. Just three bottles of this new medicine did more for me than all the rest put together. My appetite is fine. My stomach is in first class condition and I never suffer after meals. I feel better all over than I had for a long time. I heartily endorse Konjola and recommend it to all who suffer as I did. Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schmitt Bros. Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

GREAT BRITAIN DIFFERS FROM U. S. IN AIR PLANS

London—(AP)—Great Britain and the United States are in full agreement as to the importance of civil aviation, but in methods of developing the respective commercial air fleets they have agreed on practically nothing.

Sir Seton Branker, director of civil aviation under the British air ministry, called attention to this in speaking before the American chamber of commerce here.

"In Great Britain," said, "we insist on strict regulation of commercial flying from the very first; in America your flyers did pretty much as they pleased until the industry was well advanced."

"Here, we looked upon the government subsidiary as the only basis on which commercial aviation could be developed; you, on the other hand, have steadfastly refused to have anything to do with subsidaries.

"Here, practically all the emphasis in civil aviation has been placed on passenger-carrying; in the United States the transportation of mail and express came first."

"Here, practically all of our commercial air traffic has been confined to day time flights; in America, night flying long has been common."

"And yet, different as American and British theories on civil aviation have been all these years, a glance at the results achieved suggests that possibly both sides were right."

IT MAY BE EARLY, BUT PRESIDENTIAL TALK GROWS LOUDER

Coolidge Supporters Revive, and Owen D. Young Is Mentioned

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—Speculation at this time about the 1926 presidential campaign is much like worrying over what the weather will be next Fourth of July, but there's plenty of it to be heard, just the same. The odds are on Hoover to succeed himself, of course, and the probability is that they will never change.

The persistent Coolidge rumor is a strange thing and it will be odd, to say the least, if Cal is able again to worry Hoover, and his followers after the way he kept them sweating and guessing in 1927 and 1928. Hoover and his friends have an infinite capacity for worrying. They have seemed to be making an obvious attempt to belittle Cal ever since March 4.

About the time Coolidge said, "I do not choose to run," the story started that he had an idea of being a candidate in 1932. Later, with the report that he would run for senator in Massachusetts next year, the yarn has become more virulent, finally leading to Senator Pat Harrison's remarks on the floor. In the preceding fortnight your correspondent had heard the Coolidge presidential possibility seriously discussed by a large Republican campaign contributor, one of the best known Republican politicians and a foreign ambassador—among others.

But business will have to be pretty bad before the grip on re-nomination, which nearly every president has, is lost by Hoover. Bill Vane hopes for an opportunity to knife Hoover, claiming privately that Hoover promised to help his senatorial ambitions in return for his distinguished services at Kansas City last year. National Committeeman Louis E. Lippitt of Massachusetts, a friend of Coolidge, is to be very much "off" Hoover.

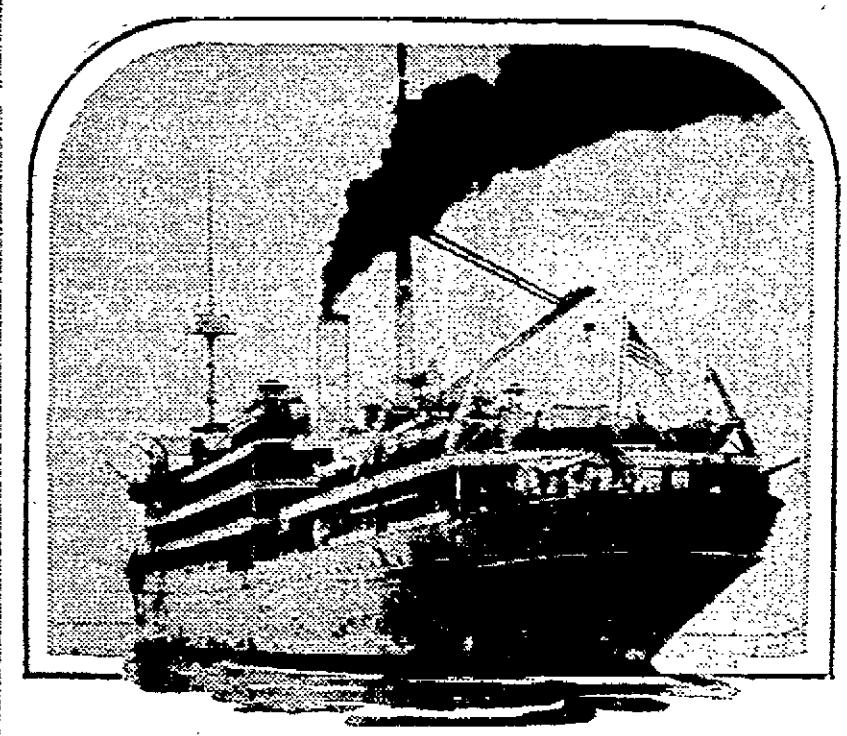

There are other isolated situations, including a reported soreness in New York City since the market crash. A few of the "backward states," as Joe Grundy calls them, might easily pick anti-Hoover delegates in 1932. Hoover has few friends among the senators. Somebody might conceivably come along and by the southern delegations out from under him.

But it would take a combination of these factors seriously to menace Hoover when nomination time comes near and there is plenty of time to solidify the president's position. If business went to pot at the wrong time, of course, an insistent call might develop for Coolidge. But no one expects that. Meanwhile, the Democrats are talking about Owen D. Young.

Hugh Smith, an Indian from the Neah Bay reservation in the state of Washington, "will know" soon whether he is to be hanged on Jan. 6 as sentenced. Smith was found guilty of an assault on a white woman and drew the death penalty under an antique law of 1835 providing for such a crime on government property. The same crime off the reservation would have called for a prison sentence.

Sixteen thousand petitions urging commutation of the sentence upon President Hoover have been received by Senator C. C. Dill of Washington and will be taken to

MEN O' WAR

The U. S. S. Henderson, one of the American navy's three transports.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh of a series of articles by Rodney Dutcher, discussing the strength of the U. S. navy, especially as it compares with the British navy. These articles are especially timely in view of the approaching naval conference at London.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The navy operates three naval transports in peacetime to carry its officers and men to and from distant stations. Such vessels are designed and equipped to carry marines and sailors or soldiers and to handle horses, artillery, ammunition, mines and other equipment when necessary. The two largest transports, the Chaumont and the Henderson, ply between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the Orient, taking care of personnel changes affecting naval vessels and bases en route. The other is the Kittery, an old cargo ship, used in the West Indies. The Henderson, a ship of 10,000 tons and 453 feet in length, makes 14 knots and is slightly larger than the Chaumont, although the latter has 13,400 tons and makes 15 knots. She carries eight 5-inch guns and a personnel of some 300 officers and men. The Chaumont was transferred from the army and cost only $150,000 to outfit; $2,250,000 was spent to build the Henderson and now it costs about $750,000 annually to operate each ship.

England gets along without any real transports, using commercial vessels. This transport type will not figure at the London conference because in time of war it is a simple matter to take over passenger liners for transportation purposes. TOMORROW: Seaplanes. Prince Albert Tobacco, 1 lb. glass jars, special 98c. Schaefer's Grocery. NOTICE: The Kaukauna Lumber and Manufacturing company will again do log saving this winter. Bring your logs in early. CALIFORNIA COP MAKES MOVIES OF WORK IN TRAFFIC

Teachers. Children Like Officer After Seeing His Production

BY BEN G. KLINE
Copyright, 1929 by Cons. Press
San Jose, Calif.—This little city in the beautiful Santa Clara valley has a traffic cop who receives enough fan mail to make a radio announcer jealous, and he's a real, honest to goodness traffic cop, too, not just in moving pictures, though he is in those, too.

Captain William Emig, commander of San Jose's traffic police, isn't exactly a shock of the screen, nor does he draw a fabulous salary as a scenario author or motion picture director, but "on his own time" during the last year he has planned, written, directed and acted in a three-reel thriller that has won him the thanks of hundreds of school teachers and parents who made him a hero to at least three thousand school children in this vicinity. That's the number of fan letters he has received from grade pupils during the last few weeks.

After wrestling with traffic problems for about twelve years, "Bill" decided that the way to teach this exasperating species, homo sapiens, to be careful was to catch him young. Having a couple of little girls of his own to watch, he discovered that pictures had more influence on children than verbal admonitions, and he discovered that they liked action and didn't pay so much attention to sub-titles. He tried to gather support for a project to depict for children the dangers of being careless and, not getting such support, he merely went ahead and made the picture himself.

The title of his three-reeler is "Caution," and it has played in twenty some-odd schools in San Jose and neighboring districts to crowded houses. In outlining his plot, the Captain divided people, mostly children, into two families, the careful and the careless. The careful cross streets only at intersections and in prescribed manner; the careless cross anywhere and get run over and taken to the hospital. The careful don't play in the streets, throw bananas and peels on sidewalks, kick birds or talk to strangers; the careless do and pay for it.

The captain's picture is "harmless" in depicting the dire results of careless actions, and with the capital especially making it "talk-making" at each performance, the dangers of traffic violations and other transgressions are well implanted in young minds hereabouts. San Jose children are warning their parents against walking against a stop signal.

"Bill" Emig's picture probably isn't as finished a product as some super-productions from Hollywood. Probably the same idea will be better done by movie experts some time, but "Bill's" friends think he deserves some kind of a medal for having thought out the idea and with the help of a few of these friends and his own traffic squad worked it into an effective piece of safety propaganda, especially since all the time he has put into making and showing it has been outside of working hours and he has had to put up the thousand dollars for its showing.

Bill himself gets his reward from his fan mail, every letter of which he has read. He's no blase star with a secretary to sort and answer his mail. He counted the letters today and was as pleased as could be with the total. One especially he liked— from a six-year-old:

"Dear Captain—I liked your picture very much. I love you."

BUSINESSMEN SHOW RELIEF AS THEY SEE EMPLOYMENT FACTS

Men Are Out of Work Now, but It Is Only Seasonal Unemployment

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
Washington—(C.P.A.)—Decided relief was experienced this week by businessmen when they viewed the figures for employment shown by the report of the bureau of labor statistics. It is confidently believed that conditions since Nov. 29, the period covered by the report, have improved greatly.

There is no doubt in the minds of well-informed businessmen that there are a large number of men out of work now. But unemployment of this character now is caused by the seasonal movement of unskilled labor to and from the harvest fields, the mines, the lumber camps, the mills and the cities. These unskilled workers necessarily are idle during the time they are moving from one job to the other.

This is true also of the mechanical trades and the building trades. It is no unusual thing for building tradesmen to throw their tool kits into the river at this season of the year in northern cities and depart to spend the winter in the south.

MANY HAVE FUNDS
This is not dangerous unemployment, even when the number of idle is large, for it is idleness on the part of those who have funds and are not likely to become public charges. Also, there are at all times large numbers of "voluntarily idle" who have no jobs because they do not want them.

Unemployment of this sort sometimes in the best years amounts to as many as 4,000,000 workers. There are not that many now out of work, and, according to government officials, no such number will be out of work. There has been some migration to the larger cities, but this is a natural move. The harvest hands usually come in to spend a few days and outfit for the winter before they go out to winter jobs. It is during these visits that much of their money finds its way into the hands of merchants, and the latter do not view the migration cityward with alarm.

The bare figures of the statistician do not give a complete picture of the situation, even though the outlines they draw are correct. Working hours per week show a change, but this is due to no small measure to the prevalence of the five-day week, which has been a goal of the workingman for generations and which does not represent a cut in wages or payrolls. In fact, the un-

FARM MARKETING AGENCIES MUST ADJUST SELVES

Legge Says Changes Are Purely Incidental to Changing Condition

Washington—(C.P.A.)—Existing farm marketing agencies may find it necessary to make "reasonable adjustments" as the Federal Farm board puts its policies into operation, but in the opinion of Chairman Legge, the need for these should be regarded as purely incidental to a changing business condition.

Mr. Legge made this clear in a statement published today in answer to the recent criticism of the board as epitomized in testimony given the senate farm committee by Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The policies of the farm board, Legge said, have not been changed as the result of conferences with Barnes and private grain traders, nor has the board agreed to submit its plans to the grain trade before taking action.

Contrary to the understanding of private grain operators, he made it clear that loans to farmers from the government's revolving fund would ultimately bear an interest rate comparable to that necessitated by borrowing from the usual commercial sources.

This, it was explained, would come about through payment in the form of interest of the cost of handling the transaction to the cooperative association through which the loan was passed. In two recent cases the board has stipulated that this should not exceed 2 per cent.

DEBATE IN HOUSE
Legge's statement came shortly after the board's critics had been roundly denounced by members of the house in debate on the annual appropriations bill for the agriculture department. The discussion brought forth assertions that Barnes' testimony before the senate committee signified an effort to interfere with the law establishing the farm board, and a plea that the board be permitted to show what it can do.

In a letter to William D. Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce which was included in the state legislature said that a promising avenue of assistance to the farmer lay in prolonging the period over which a crop is marketed and in this connection asserted that "reasonable adjustments" required of existing agencies should be regarded as incidental to a changing business condition and not as an attack upon "anybody's business."

Senator Allen, Republican, Kansas, welcomed the chairman's statement and said today that while it was unfortunate that some dealers "must suffer at least temporary inconvenience," yet "for the greater good of the greater number, it is imperative that current disturbances not be allowed to interfere" with the board's program.

Lisbon—(C.P.A.)—To encourage tourist traffic to Portugal, the government has reduced by one-half harbor dues for all foreign tourist ships calling at Portuguese ports.

WAGES OF THE COUNTRY ARE HIGHER TODAY THAN THEY HAVE EVER BEEN

ANXIETY ABATES

The report of the labor bureau shows the darkest side of the picture in its outlines. November always is an inventory month, with many plants closed for considerable periods even when prosperity is at its height. This year November's figures represent the first tentative reaction of some employers over the upheaval in the stock market. The figures are for a period prior to the business conferences held here, in which pledges of programs were made which will involve the expenditure of billions and furnish employment to millions.

It is still too soon for the effect of these pledges to be felt. Operations of such magnitude cannot be undertaken overnight, but even so, officials here are confident that the labor situation since Nov. 31, has shown a marked improvement.

There are some industries which are in an unhealthy condition not because of the present situation but because of developments in the past. These cannot be made prosperous immediately and since they are weak they naturally feel any reaction more severely than the healthy industries. This is true of the textile trades and one or two others. In general, however, the situation is not one which is causing acute alarm to government circles.

PHONE SAVES SUICIDE
New York—Louis Potash, 70, at tempted suicide. After he had taken poison, he stumbled and knocked the phone receiver off its hook. Groans of the man reached the telephone operator, who sent police and an ambulance to Potash's home. It is believed Potash will recover.

$100,000 LOSS, 3 INJURED IN SPARTA FIRE

Oldest Business Block in Badger City Is Destroyed by Flames

Sparta—(P)—Three persons were injured and damage amounting to $100,000 was done by fire that destroyed the oldest business block in Sparta last night. The blaze was believed to have started from an overheated boiler in the basement of the Vard Vieth Clothing company.

The injured are: Fire Chief Gerdie McComber, seriously cut by flying glass; Fireman Marvin Pettis, overcome by smoke; and Jack Ebert, a bystander, cut on the head by falling glass.

The fire was discovered shortly after 10 o'clock last night in the Card Vieth store and quickly spread to the assembly hall and Modern Woodmen of America lodge rooms upstairs. Extreme cold and wind hampered efforts of the Sparta firemen to control the flames.

The blaze caught in the Huson Clothing company building adjoining the Card Vieth store as heat drove the firemen back from the fire. The La Crosse department was called to assist.

CHECK SPREAD OF FIRE
At midnight, the entire Hoffman block was aflame, and structures across the street were endangered. Businessmen and citizens aided firemen to prevent the fire extending to adjoining blocks and files and records were carried from buildings across the street.

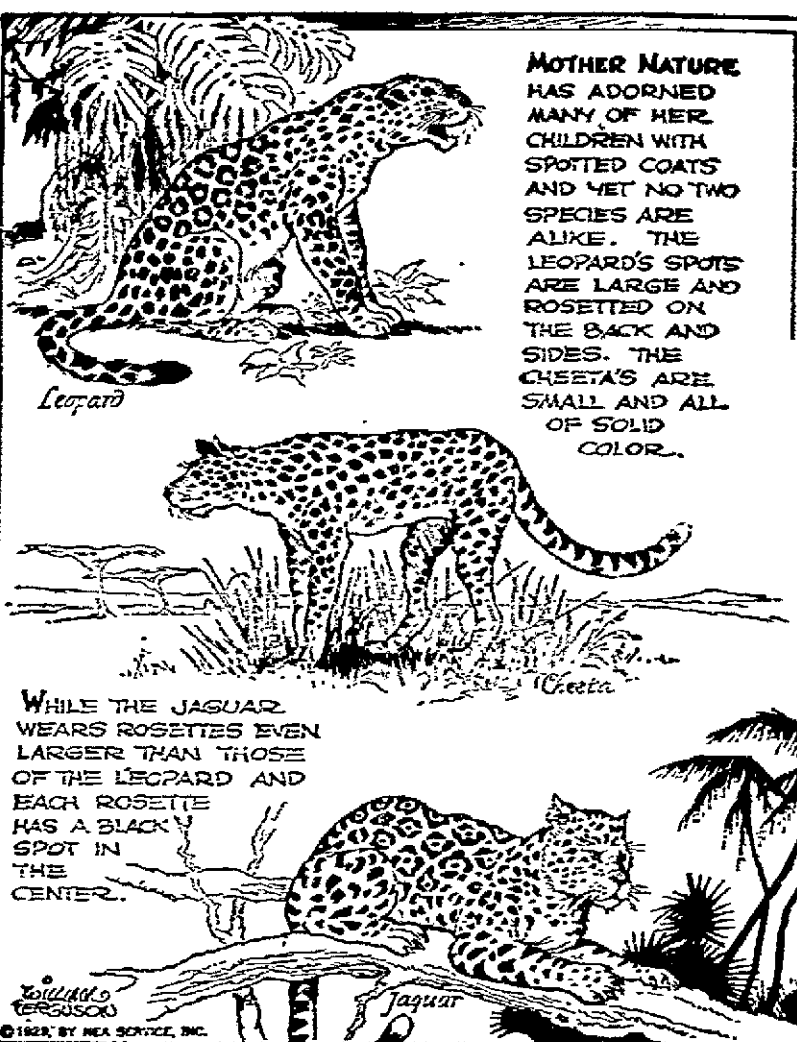

Firemen and equipment from La Crosse, 20 miles away, arrived at 1:20 a. m. today. With the added help, Sparta firemen were able to prevent flames spreading to other buildings.

Fire Chief McComber, while cut seriously about the arms by falling glass, accepted emergency treatment and returned to direct the fire-fighters. Fireman Pettis was revived after being overcome by smoke. Jack Ebert was cut about the head and face by flying glass, but his injuries were not considered serious.

The following business structures were destroyed: The Card Vieth Clothing company; the Huson Clothing company; the Red and White chain store; the Colney Island lunch room and Fred Thurston's pool hall.

Damage was estimated at $100,000. None of the records of the business firms was saved. The Card Vieth and Huson companies had put in new stocks of clothing for the holidays. Nothing was saved from either of the stocks.

MANY GAS STATIONS GIVE SHORT MEASURE

Madison—(P)—The majority of gasoline stations suspected of giving short measure, are guilty, George Warner, chief inspector for the state weights and measures bureau of the department of agriculture said today.

It is almost impossible for the average motorist to check on them, too he said. The ordinary automobile gas tank gauge is inaccurate and is not graded fine enough to detect the shortages, he said. So the bureau uses a "decoy tank."

Driving on gasoline from a hidden tank, the motorist-inspector drives to the filling station suspected and gets a tank-full or an order of gasoline in a tank at the usual location in his car. This is taken to a convenient place and drained, measured in standard gallons and if found wanting, is kept as evidence. Generally two or three such purchases are made at the suspected station to

URGES ADVERTISING TO BOOST TOURIST TRADE

Madison—(P)—Oscar Gunderson, immigration commissioner for the state department of agriculture and markets, commenting on the highway commission report that most of Wisconsin's tourist traffic comes from around Chicago and that south and west incoming traffic is not increasing as it should, said:

"The moral seems to be that because of natural facilities and our location near the vast population of Chicago we are able to hold our own pretty well but that our tourist business could be much increased by spending more money on advertising."

In one city ten try-outs of suspected stations were made and seven revealed short measure. The shortage was generally more than a gallon on a five-gallon purchase.

FIGHTING BISHOP IS PHOTOGRAPHED

Dr. Cannon Target of Other Cameras While He Grapples With Newsman

Los Angeles—(P)—Los Angeles newspapers today published pictures of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in action as he charged a news photographer.

The pictures were snapped by other action-loving photographers yesterday when the church dignitary attempted to rout a group of cameramen who had been waiting for him outside a justice court.

The gray-haired bishop, here to aid his son and daughter-in-law, Richard M. Cannon and Mrs. Margaret Cannon, in difficulties incidental to the operation of a military academy, leaped into action when cameras clicked as he stepped from the court during a recess.

As he grappled with one photographer, demanding to know what right the picture-man had to "take my picture," other cameras were trained on the struggling pair and shutters snapped on the bishop in a fighting pose. Talking note of this, Dr. Cannon calmed himself quickly and consented to pose.

The bishop declined to comment on recent reports of the failure of a New York stock brokerage house, records of which contained his name. "That's my business," he snapped, when questioned by a reporter, "and I certainly consider it a very indelicate question."

Good Angling Found In Many Wisconsin Waters

BY E. A. CLAPLIN

I shall point out, beginning with this article, some of the principal waters of Wisconsin which afford good angling for the different varieties of our game fishes. Let us consider first the black bass.

Without fear of contradiction by experienced fishermen I will name the St. Croix river as heading the list of waters for Small Mouth bass. It can be reached and fished at many places, one of which I name from personal knowledge. That is, fifteen miles from Amery, which is on highway 45. This is one of the best places to hit this stream. I have tried out about all the best spots and will mention those that proved most prolific. Another very good spot on the river may be reached by driving twenty-five miles northwest from Hayward. The stream can be waded and altogether the sport is of the best I have ever experienced.

Lakes Namakagon and Owen, Patry, Trapper and Ghost lakes near Cable, in Barron county, are excellent bass waters. One of the best regions we have for taking these fish lies also in Barron county, near Cumberland. Beaver Dam, Cedar and Shell lakes are very productive. Getting a little nearer home we have Ecco, Spider, Crab lakes, and the Manitowish river near the town of Manitowish, in Iron county. Ecco lake is particularly good for Small Mouths. I took plenty of them from that lake with one of my heavier fly rods. I used a special reel because, owing to the many obstructions among the lily pads of Ecco lake, one must needs recover line very quickly at times if he is to save his fish.

Still nearer home, Stone lake, near Cranston, is good. Near the lower end of the big island where the lily pads are is the best part of the lake for bass.

In the Laona country are Silver, Rat and Mionga lakes, which contain bass. There are also other bodies of "unfished" water which are prolific in bass beyond any doubt.

Mason and Two Sisters in Oneida county are bass waters. Walker lake, near Wabeno, is likewise good, but the fish are Oswegoes.

Springstead, Boot, Bear, Skull lakes and the Flambeau river, all within twenty-five miles of Park Falls; Minor lake, in Waupaca county; and the well known waters of Door county peninsula and Mink river are places where bass may be taken according to the skill of the angler. The localities I have mentioned are among those I have fished personally hence I offer this information as being reliable. My next article will deal with the muskies.

NEWSPAPERS AND COURTS RUB AGAIN ON NEWS SOURCES

Question Arises in Washington Once More—Three Reporters Go to Jail

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — American newspapers and courts have been clashing lately with more than ordinary frequency. There is no expert testimony available as to whether this is due to a greater yearning among editors for fuller freedom of the press or an increasing tendency among judges and prosecutors to adopt an all-powerful attitude and keep the newspapers "in their place."

The national capital has been the scene of one of the most sensational conflicts between courts and press this year. Three young reporters for the Washington Times are serving 45 days in jail for refusing to become prosecuting witnesses against bootleggers and speakeasy proprietors whom they had met during their work on the newspaper's expose of the witness of Washington. Their city editor had turned over evidence to the grand jury, giving names and the addresses of speakeasies.

There is no law here granting newspapermen professional immunity, but the three reporters argued that their information had been gathered confidentially for their newspaper in rendering a public service and that the grand jury had been given enough evidence to conduct an inquiry of its own. They were sentenced by Justice Peyton Gordon. Most of the other Washington newspapermen are envying them because their salaries have been doubled for the period of their incarceration and their employer has promised each a $1,000 bonus, a gold watch and a public reception when they get out.

This case has attracted almost as much national attention as the incident wherein Paul R. Mellon of the United Press gave the secret roll call of an executive session of the Senate and refused to divulge the source of his information. After some talk about punishing Mellon for contempt the senate voted that in the future secret roll calls might be abolished in separate instances by majority. In both this case and that of the Washington Times reporters, newspapers over the country joined in upholding the right of reporters to preserve confidential information.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, a newspaper publisher himself, has promised to promote a bill providing that no newspaperman shall be compelled in the District of Columbia to divulge the source of information which he gathers for his newspaper. This law, if enacted, would resemble one which has been in effect in Maryland since 1836.

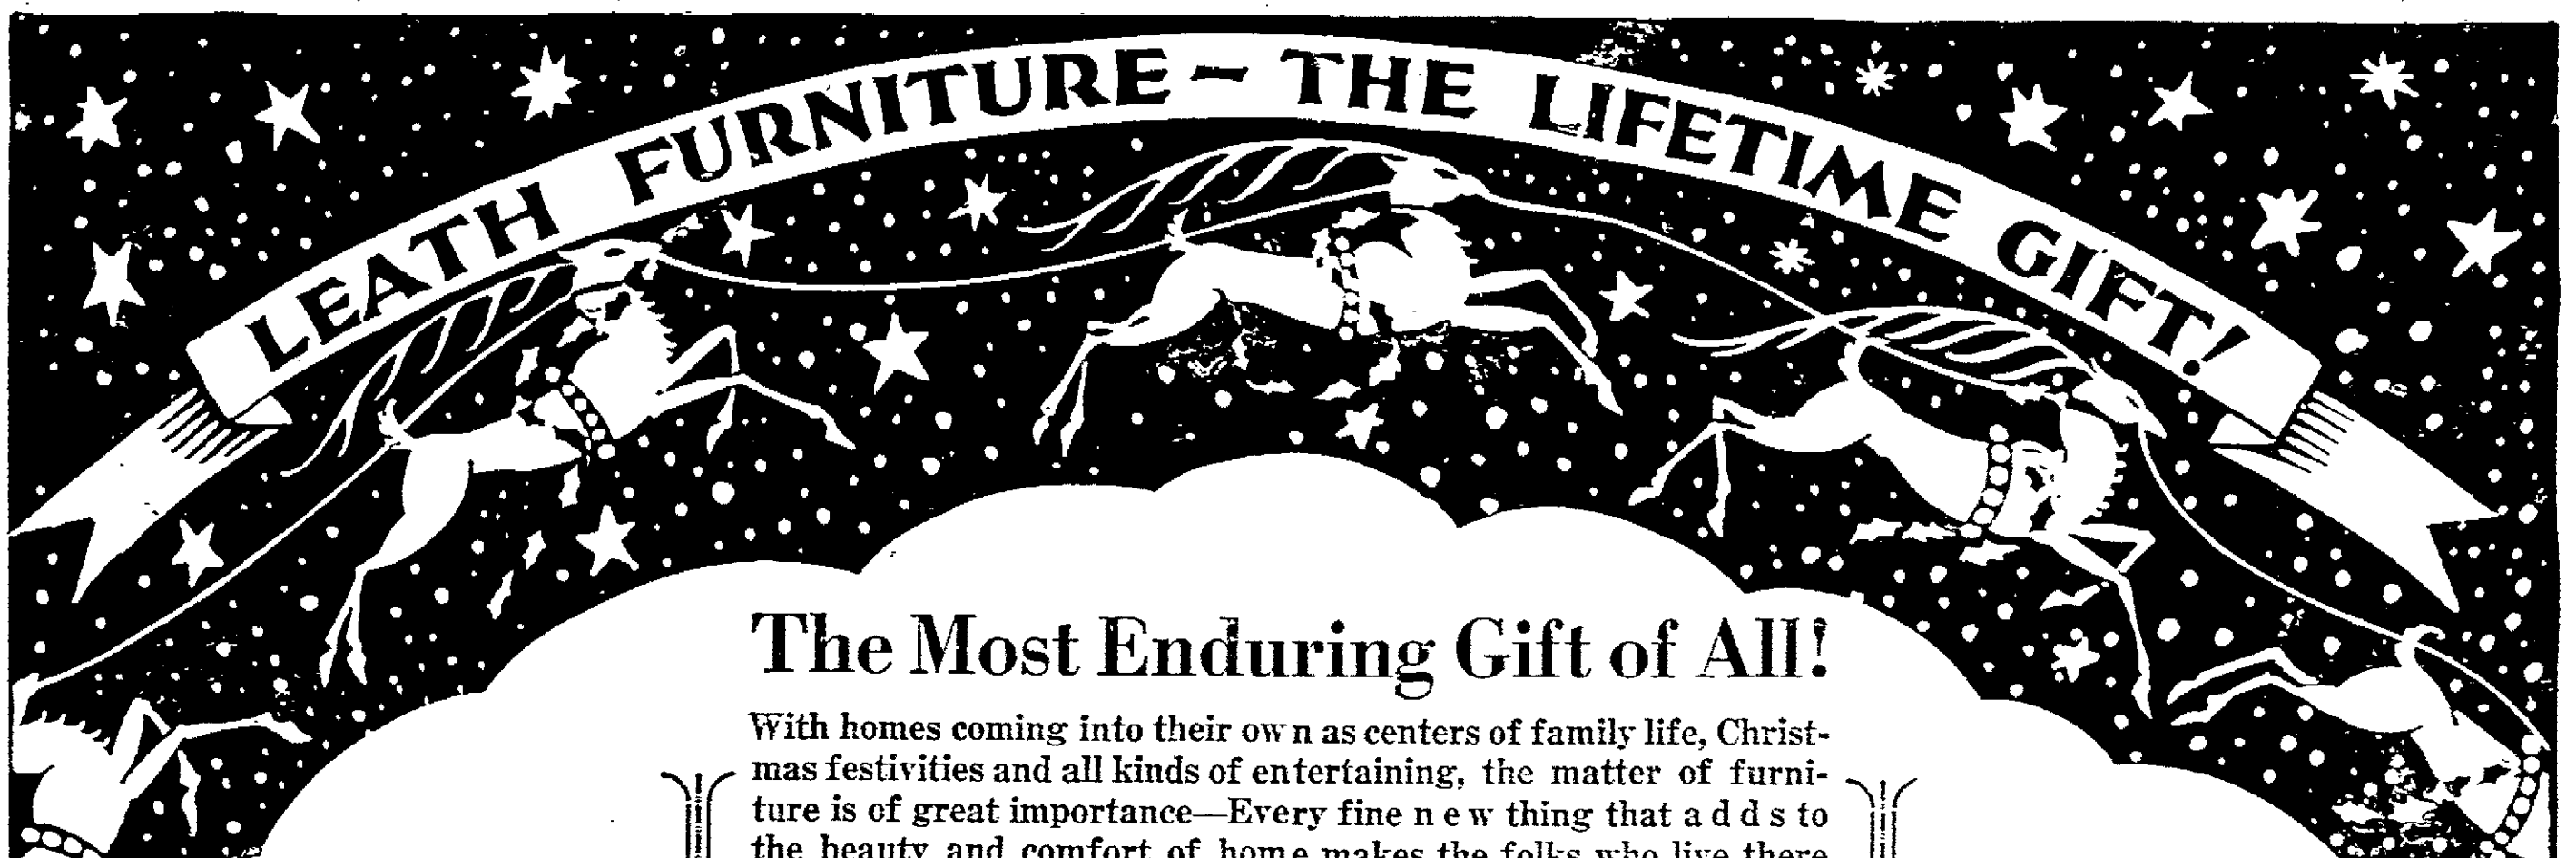

The question whether newspapermen should be required to become witnesses when they have exposed vice and bootlegging has been raised before. The judicial attitude often seems to be that the newspapers should leave large masses of citizens ignorant of conditions unless they are prepared to act as prosecuting witnesses. Recently the editor of the Daily Register of Oelwein, Ia., R. V. Lucas, was summoned before a county grand jury to explain why he had said that officers of the law had passed by several speakeasies on their way to raid places in Oelwein.

Down in the Canal Zone the Panama American has been gravely speaking its opinions of officials and judges there and has had trouble from time to time. The other day Pete Brennan, its editor, was sentenced to five days in jail for failing to produce the originals of certain editorials upon the demand of the mayor of Balboa.

Some loud booming shots for freedom of the press have also been sounded in Mississippi by Major Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson Daily News. A story in Editor & Publisher points out ironically that after two years of federal investigations and trials centering on Perry W. Howard and other colored politicians accused of bartering federal offices, Sullens is the only person to be found guilty of anything. Major Sullens wrote in his newspaper that Howard and his co-defendants would be acquitted, regardless of their guilt or innocence. They were acquitted, sure enough, but Federal Judge Edwin Holmes found the major guilty of contempt of court and placed him "on probation during good behavior." Major Sullens replied with an editorial refusing probation, promising to forecast public events whenever he felt prompted to do so and defying any attempt at public censorship. The judge hastened to announce that he had no intention of exercising censorship.

But probably the most notable recent victory for the press over the courts is to be seen in the election of George R. Dale, fighting editor of the weekly Post-Democrat of Muncie, Ind., as mayor of Muncie. Some three years ago Dale started a combined attack on the Ku Klux Klan, graft and a local judge. They retaliated with contempt convictions, a sentence to the state farm and confiscation of his newspapers on the street. Dale kept on fighting, and eventually the judge only escaped impeachment through the fact that a two-thirds vote could not quite be mustered against him. Now Dale is sitting on top of the heap.

NEW LONDON CAGE TEAM IN EASY WIN OVER TIGERTON BOYS

Substitutes Take Floor After Regulars Pile Up Substantial Lead

New London—The New London high school basketball team had easy going Thursday evening when it rode rough shod over Tigerton basketballers, winning by a 24-10 score. Pfeiffer was the first to count when he shot the ball through the hoop. Tigerton made the same play to tie the score. Brown added a point for the home team on a foul which Tigerton again duplicated. Pfeiffer then came through with two baskets in quick succession. Brown followed Pfeiffer's lead after the second quarter opened bringing the score 12-2. This about finished the regulars for the night, and the substitutes took over in continuing the scoring. When the regulars left, the floor they had held the Tigerton to one basket.

Ladwig, Derbach, and Burton's guarding is improving with each game. Pete Westphal at center had an easy time with his man.

New London's team work this year hinges a lot on the players sneaking in on the opposing team and stealing the ball or seeing it up so that a half ball play results.

The second team continued playing to within a few minutes of the game's end. The Ruby brothers, and Beck did most of the scoring for the subs. While they were in they accounted for 13 of New London's points, and held Tigerton to 7 points.

COMMITTEE HEARS DISTRICT TEACHERS

Madison—(CP)—The legislative interim committee on education, investigating the financial and other needs of the state's public, high, and normal schools will embark on the latter phase of its work here Jan. 10 and 11. Tuesday and Wednesday it heard representatives of many high school districts tell of loss of financial aid through detachment, proceedings, or a "legally poor financial condition" of the districts, and suggesting ways of relieving that condition. Generally the school officers were in favor of a luxury tax over additional general property taxes.

Edward J. Demsey, president of the state board of regents of state teachers colleges, and Edgar G. Douda, secretary of the board, will be invited to appear before the committee respecting the normal schools' financial conditions.

The committee plans hearings in various parts of the state following the normal school meeting, on general phases of the education problem. Most of those testified here were from the southern half of the state, at least one meeting in the north is being planned to accommodate school officers there who want to tell the committee about their schools.

Madison—(CP)—Railroad Commissioner A. R. McDonald, who has just returned from Washington participated there in discussions preliminary to the new national law for regulation of inter-state buses. The law, introduced in both houses of Congress now in bill form, will allow an advisory council representing the utilities regulatory bodies of each state through which the bus line operates, to decide on issuance of a permit. Appeal from the decision of the advisory committee will be direct to the interstate commerce commission. There is now no regulation of buses in inter-state traffic. Mr. McDonald believes the proposed law will provide an equitable adjustment of all interstate bus matters.

HANDKERCHIEF IS POPULAR AS GIFT

And There is no Reason Why It Shouldn't Match the Scarf

BY ALLEN LAMONT
Copyright 1929, By, Coca Press

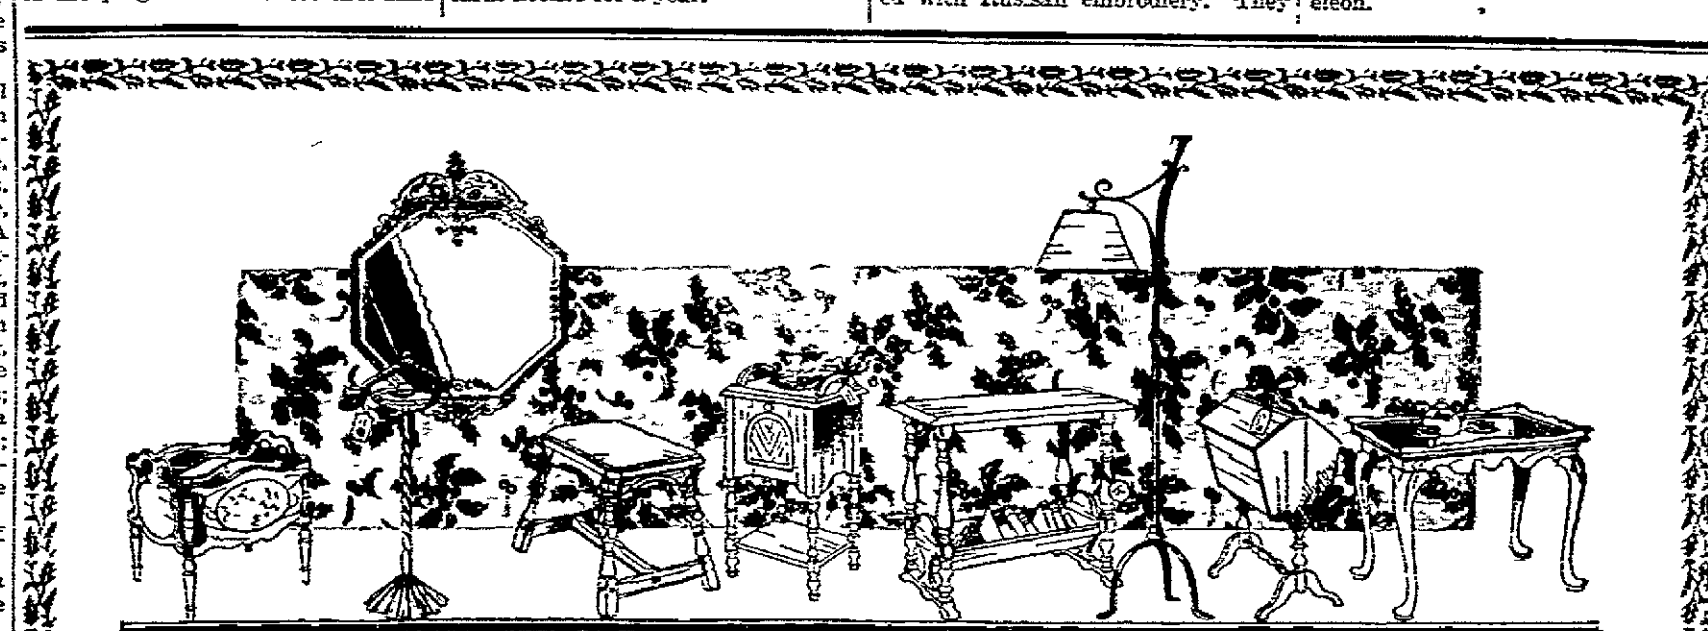

New York—Paris is doing her best to make the scarf and handkerchief an acceptable Christmas gift this season. This year the print handkerchiefs from Paris are bigger and better than ever. And the rodier scarfs, of light material, very soft and interwoven with silk, enhance the good looks of any neck. Of course, if you have gone ensemble, there's no reason why the scarf and the handkerchief should not match, nor why each should not repeat some dominant tone of the sports suit.

It may not be generally known that Russians wear pajamas, but evidently they do, for some of the new pajamas are lavishly decorated with Russian embroidery. They have coats which hang out or tuck in, just as you please, and if you are a good sleeper the embroidery upon both coats and trousers will not keep you awake. Other pajamas, even more embroidered, are of the hostess type.

No longer is Sunday supper a haphazard meal tossed together from the remains of the Sabbath dinner. Nor is the Sunday supper costume anything but formal. More, net, taffeta and lace are among the fabrics of which the Sunday supper frock is made, and it may or may not have sleeves or a cutaway back. If you are the type who can successfully wear taffeta, those diagonally striped taffeta supper frocks were designed especially for you.

Stockings these days, and especially these nights, are far too delicate in tint and texture to be hung up as receptacles into which Santa Claus is requested to thrust a rocking-horse. Shades of black, which really means shades of gray and taupe, are increasingly popular. So are shades of gold and fresh pink. The names are as attractive as the colors; for example, moonlight, tea-time, champagne.

"THE STORE OF TRUE VALUES"

AUTHOR WRITES TOO REALISTIC NOVEL; HELD FOR MURDER

Life of Martin Lampel Has Been One Continuous Round of Trouble

BY MILTON BRONNER
Berlin. Sitting in jail while investigations are conducted into his alleged complicity in a murder, Peter Martin Lampel has had plenty of time to reflect upon the pitfalls which beset the way of an author with a too-rapid imagination. Lampel's literary career has been just one long series of troubles.

He scribbled extreme German nationalism and won the ill will of men of the extreme Left. He wrote German Communism and won the violence of the old comrades of the extreme Right. He turned out a novel about a Vehmgericht—a secret court of vengeance such as are held by bands of extreme Nationalists—and the police pounced on him while he was battling out a new play on his trusty typewriter.

It seems that for some time now, the police of Silesia have been trying to discover the murderer of Fritz Koehler, a member of the Oberland Free Corps. This was an organization of monarchist and anti-republican tendencies. Recently a suspect was arrested and, although he subsequently was released, he named Lampel, an engineer named Schwenninger and a student, one von Beulwitz, as knowing all about the fate of Koehler.

HIS NOVEL RECALLED
Then the police remembered that Lampel had written a novel called "Becked Youth," and in it the experiences of a young man in a nationalist organization like the Oberland Free Corps were described. It seems that in these organizations, when the leaders suspected one of the members of treachery, they held a secret trial and if they found him guilty, sentenced him to execution. The leaders then designated some of their younger members to decor the "guilty" man to a lonely spot where he was duly done in.

In his book, Lampel gave a very realistic description of how a young man thus suspected was murdered. So vivid was the narrative and so nauseating the details that it seemed nobody could have invented them. Police decided that he must have seen them.

Shortly after the arrest of Lampel and Schwenninger, attorneys came to the authorities with what they declared was the real solution of the mystery.

PLEAD SELF-DEFENSE
According to this story, Koehler had been fired out of the Free Corps. One night von Beulwitz, Lampel and Schwenninger were patrolling the country in Silesia when von Beulwitz discovered Koehler in a barn searching for the arms the Free Corps was supposed to have concealed there.

During the encounter von Beulwitz was declared to have shot Koehler in self-defense. Neither Lampel nor Schwenninger was in the barn at the time, it was said, and took no part in the shooting.

It was a probable enough story, but authorities just can forget the story and realistic detail contained in Lampel's book. How, they are wondering, could an innocent man have imagined such a murder?

POLITICAL VIEWS CHANGED
Lampel, son of a German country parson, has been in the public eye before. He served in the war with gallantry, first as a cavalryman and afterwards as an air pilot. After the war, he joined the Oberland Free Corps, but his political views suffered a complete change and he found his way into the Communist camp.

After this he made his living by writing. In addition to the novel already mentioned, he made local fame as one of the most advanced dramatists in his country. His play, "Revolt in a Reformatory School," exposing scandals in those institutions, was a nine days' sensation in Berlin. Then he came forth with another—"Poison Gas Over Berlin"—a play about the use of this gas for a revolution. The Berlin authorities forbade its performance on the ground that it threatened public order and security.

Blue Is Still Favorite Hue Of Well Dressed Motor Car

Detroit. (AP)—Blue, with the dual personality of energizing or tranquilizing, depending upon the emotion of the beholder, continues to be the favorite garb of the well dressed automobile with the coming of fall. Brown-beige, green, black, gray and maroon, according to a lacquer manufacturer follow as favorites. The brighter blues, such as top-gallant, cerise and seafoam blue, are the strong favorites, said the statement, which added that all blues except the lighter tints carry an association of darkness and this, coupled with the demand for darker shades for fall, adds to the prestige of blue. Brown and beige, which carry an atmosphere of newness because of their comparatively recent introduction in the automobile industry, continue to be popular. Brown definitely outlines the contours of the automobile and suggests rugged stability and worth. Such colors as theme brown, rich loam, dried brown, Lackawanna brown, Huguonot brown, alder brown are named as among the popular shades for fall, and combinations of these shades are suggested to furnish a pleasing finish. Green, which was the leading production color in the spring of 1929, has dropped to third place among the favorites, due probably, the statement pointed out, to the difficulty of employing it artistically. Black and gray were said to be more firmly established this fall than at any time for many months. Some automobile manufacturers were reported experimenting with body colors of blue-black and green-black.

FRANKLIN TREE LOCATED AFTER 140-YEAR HUNT

Botanical Survey Is Solved
by Government Man After 20 Years

Darien, Ga.—(P)—The lost Georgia, the famous Benjamin Franklin tree missing to botanists 140 years, has been found.

"This is fine written to an old botanical mystery and the dream of 20 years come true for G. A. Schulze, government botanist."

The "lost" Georgia is a species of bay—a beautiful flowering tree-shrub, of which several domestic specimens are in existence in the United States and Great Britain.

But the domesticated tree has been sterile, and could be propagated only from cuttings. So another wild specimen has been sought for years in hopes of producing fertile seed.

The original Franklin tree was found in 1765 in the Altamaha river valley in Georgia, by John Bartram of Philadelphia, who named it after Franklin. Again in 1790 it was found in the same valley, by Messrs. Merriam.

Since then, until Schulze discovered it, it never had been reported wild. Schulze found it near the banks of the same Altamaha river where so many others failed.

The swamps of the Altamaha offer little encouragement to searchers, since they generally are vast deep in muddy water.

In searching for the Georgia Schulze studied old maps to aid him in locating the road which followed the path probably taken by Bartram in the eighteenth century.

Like a detective after a criminal, Schulze hunted. He went from deduction to deduction, and followed clue after clue. Then one day he drove his automobile over an old road fairly traceable after generations of disuse.

When the road became impassable he walked a few hundred yards and the search was ended. The plant was not healthy, but its identity was established by federal authorities in Washington. No others were to be seen of the original grove.

FARM MARKET PROGRAM GAINS IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston.—(P)—A farm marketing program sponsored by the New England council is now effective in every New England state.

Passage of enabling legislation by the New Hampshire legislature and the signature of Governor Tobey introduced the program to the sixth state in this region. It provides for establishment of grades and standards of farm produce in each state and the use of special labels, including the "New England Quality Label."

The farm marketing program, meanwhile, is progressing in other states. In 1923 the Vermont maple products crop will be more highly standardized than ever before, according to L. A. Cooley, director of markets of the Vermont department of agriculture.

MOSQUITOES SHOT WITH CLOUDS OF PARIS GREEN

Indianapolis.—(P)—Success is claimed for a new method of destroying mosquitoes wholesale by clouds of Paris green.

The poison is mixed with soap stone or hydrated lime and its discharge resembles wartime smoke screens. As the Paris green is diluted before mixing it is said to harm only mosquitoes.

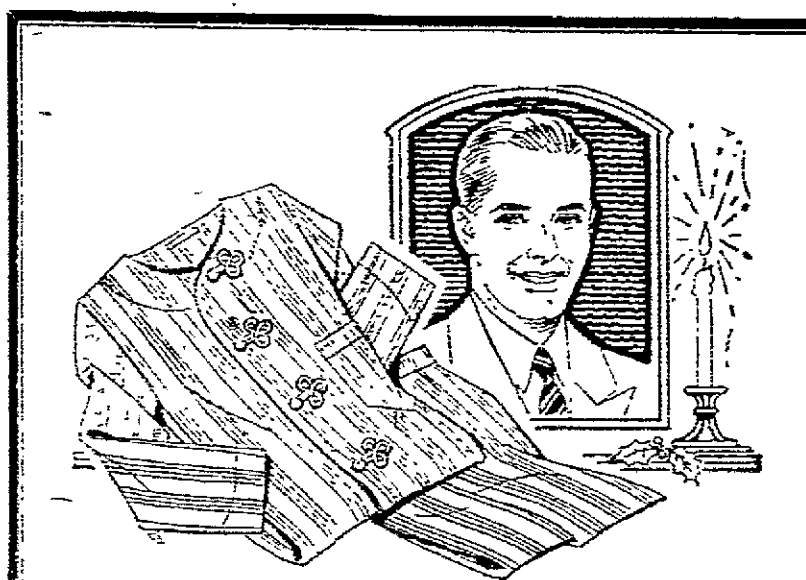

Experiments have been going on for two years at a proving ground in swamps or western Tennessee, and now an Indianapolis film company has issued pictures for an educational campaign.

Spraying from machines carried in motorboats or automobiles produces dust clouds many feet high that penetrate trees and undergrowth for several hundred feet to windward. This treatment is said to destroy all mosquitoes in the margin named.

Airplanes in a single flight sometimes spray areas a half mile wide. With planes the method is similar to that used in dusting cotton fields.

Development of Paris green as a larvicide was done under direction of the late Dr. M. A. Barber, former director of malaria research for the U. S. Public Health Service.

Methods now in use were tested under direction of Surgeon L. L. Williams, Jr., and more recently of Surgeon E. B. Coffey, chief of the malaria division.

MIAMI AIR SHOW BIDS FOR LATIN-AMERICANS

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—Entries from 22 Latin-American countries are expected at Miami's second All-American air meet January 15-17. Pilots from all over North America also have been invited.

The meet was approved by the National Aeronautical Association, and will include an international exhibition.

In anticipation of a record-breaking meet, many of the current automobiles are planning improvements which will give them the most adequate and varied features in the world.

TINTED TOE-NAILS SHOCK PARISIANS

Style Dictates That Jewels, Finger and Toe-nails Harmonize

Paris —(AP)—The frankest frank style of the advance guard of fashion is toe-nails enameled in colors to match finger nails, which return are supposed to match jewels.

Cleopatra had nothing on the Parisian devotees who display painted, manufactured feet on which colored nails are distinctly visible through velvet hose and low cut sandals.

Conservative Parisians are shocked by the style which the Princesses of Monaco, Lorraine, and other of the aristocracy of the dressing table, say is a direct importation from Spain.

"No French woman of taste would make her feet so conspicuous," she said feelingly to a report of who wanted her views on tinted nails.

"French women make a mistake to use the dubious fashion set by foreigners," was the way Andre de Loqueux, semi-official Ben Brumet of France, voiced his opinion of dyed nails.

Nevertheless, the French wife of one of France's most famous courtiers is a leader in the movement to fashionize dyed nails. She sponsors the style of emerald nails which match emerald rings. Her own nails are a brilliant green.

MUMMIFIED HAND WEAVES WEB OF WOES TO ARABS

Find Hand Wrapped in Fine Silk Scarf and Baring Rings on Fingers

Luxor, Egypt —(AP)—A spell of disaster that fell upon all who had in their possession a mummified hand of an ancient Egyptian queen, has been broken by the return of the hand to its tomb.

Some months ago, the story of Luxor has it, an antique dealer came into possession of the hand. An Austrian tourist bought it as a souvenir of his visit to Egypt. Then, shortly the dealer received the hand by post, with a note from the traveler pleading with him to return it to its tomb.

The hand was wrapped in a fine white silk scarf and bore rings on the fingers. The dealer contacted the hand to the Austrian tourist, who set it on its way to the Museum of the Hapsburgs at Vienna.

The present state of the hand is a mystery. His former owner, it is said, had the hand in his possession.

But the next day, the present owner died and the hand was found in his possession. The hand was found in his possession.

Despite these omens the brother started for Cairo to sell the ring.

He sat down on the roadside to wait for his train and was found dead several hours later.

The present owner became thoroughly alarmed. He restored the ring to the hand, swathed it again in its silken covering and returned it to its tomb.

Since then his life has been pleasantly uneventful.

ST. GEORGE PUT IN SHADE BY FARMERS

United States Land Tiller Battles Billions of Dragons Every Day

Chicago —(AP)— St. George, who polished off one dragon and annexed a historical reputation for it, gets the horse laugh from the American farmer.

That gentleman battles billions of dragons every day for his living.

How many dragons the farmer has to fight with was shown by the huge heaps of publications exhibited in and distributed from a special booth of the United States department of agriculture at the 1929 international livestock exposition here.

To save his crops and his stock, one learns from these publications, the farmer has to fight daily against an army of chokles flies, houseflies, wireworms, rootworms, grubworms, cutworms, and many other worms. For, there are a host of bacilli such as those of tuberculosis, blackleg, and dozens of other diseases, to say nothing of lice and mites and ticks.

Besides, he has to battle with the weather at lambing time, and at calving time, and when his pig crop is being born into a cold world, as well as at harvest time when storms may ruin his whole year's crop.

And, scattered through his pastures is grass in which are concealed poison weeds which may kill his stock.

Dillions of these enemies move upon him every day and night.

That he wins these battles, however, sometimes pretty gloriously, was indicated in the exhibits of fine, fat stock with curly hair and in the crops that filled the bins of the exposition.

TIN DRESSES LADIES

London—You women might be running around in tin dresses before long. A process has been perfected which makes it possible to spray tin on a fabric like silk, wool or other cloth. This can be colored and made into a dress that will stand lots of wear. This process is also said to eliminate metal corrosion when the tin is sprayed on metal surfaces.

BADGERS SHOW NEW STYLE OF ATTACK; BUD FOSTER PLAYS

Tall Minnesotans Are Unable to Keep Pace With Meanwell's Ponies

BY STANLEY E. KALISH
Associated Press Sports Writer
MADISON, Wis., Dec. 19.—A good little basketball team that followed the ball, shot accurately and had an impenetrable defense outlasted a group of six-footers from the northland here last night as Wisconsin's midlets downed Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., 27 to 18.

A short-lived two-point Carleton lead melted as the Badger blizzard swept to an 18 to 7 advantage at the half, never to relinquish it.

With "Bud" Foster at center as the main over six feet tall, pivoting and feeding the ball as he has dodged old man eligibility the last two years, the diminutive Badgers presented a whirlwind, long-pass attack that would have scored more frequently had the ball-handling been smoother.

Foster, who counted only five points, was chief of the offense, but his own tries were muffed by his own errors in dribbling.

It was the lightning-fast Maury Leach, risen from a substitute to regular forward, who led Wisconsin's attack. He counted 12 of his team's 27 points by way of five field goals and three free throws.

Defensively the Badgers were, as stout as ever, allowing their opponents only five goals from the field only one of which was a short, swishing counter.

The offense was revamped with a long pass, quick-breaking attack differing from the famous short-pass play that have made Dr. W. E. Meanwell, coach, famous. They did not entirely abandon the old favorite, but the long shots down the floor were more frequent than ever before.

Carleton played a fast breaking offense, attempting to use its players' height to advantage, but Coach C. B. Cowley's five could not slip by Chmielewski and Paul, Wisconsin guards.

The accuracy of the Badgers is noted in the fact that they made 11 field goals in 51 shots, while Carleton had only 29 tries at the basket, of which five were good.

FOSTER ELIGIBLE

Madison.—(P)—The threat of ineligibility which chased Harold (Bud) Foster, Wisconsin's all-conference basketball star, for the last two years, has been definitely lifted today.

He was clear of all charges.

Foster, originally protested two years ago on charges that he had played with an amateur team, was cleared on that occasion. Again last year, the Badger star was protested because he had played one season at Mason City, Ia., junior college. At the Western conference meeting in 1928, Foster was cleared of the second charge and went on to win all-conference honors as a forward.

A week ago, after he had been declared eligible for another season, one of the members of the conference protested for the third time. Prof. Fred E. Francis of Ohio State university, chairman of the conference eligibility committee, decided Foster was eligible for another season of competition. Yesterday, it was announced that the protesting school had withdrawn its charge after "it had gained a more complete knowledge of the facts."

The eligibility point in question concerns the status of athletes who have played for junior colleges which do not award degrees. The decision in Foster's case indicates such players could be eligible for Western conference competition, although there has been some agitation to have them barred.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS... By Laufer

A. L. Owners See New Gate Attendance Mark

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS Copyright

CHICAGO.—E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, views the 1930 baseball season with tremendous optimism. He believes his league will be treated to a closer pennant race than in 1929, when the Philadelphia Athletics made a race track of the schedule and foresees an increase in attendance.

"The American league drew 500,000 more spectators in 1929 than during the previous season and without the benefit of a close race," declared Mr. Barnard. "I believe there will be a greater increase in interest and attendance during 1930 and that within a few seasons the American league will equal its best previous records."

Barnard is of the opinion that the American league is generally stronger from the standpoint of good management than any time in several years. Connie Mack, Roger Peckinpaugh, Stanley Harris and Walter Johnson are holdovers and have proved their abilities. Peck is becoming one of the clever managers of the major leagues and his Cleveland club played a smarter brand of ball during 1929 than any club in the league.

Bob Shawkey should do well in New York and although he faces a monumental task in filling the shoes of the late Miller Huggins, he was Huggins' choice and the mile leader always was a strong booster for his successor. Only last year, Huggins recommended Shawkey to an American league club owner needing a manager and when Bob was not selected brought him back to the Yankees to help tutor pitchers.

American League club owners are unanimous in the belief that Donie Bush will do much to restore the waning popularity of the White Sox among Chicago fans. For years the Rose were the favorites of Chicago but for several years they have been in a rut while the Cubs were pennant chasing. So the customers went north instead of south.

Dash starts at Chicago under favorable circumstances. He is Irish and aggressive, which will make him popular with the south side fans. He has the undivided support of Charlie Comiskey, who is again taking an active part in the Sox affairs. Donie also is very popular with the Chicago players and no less a recalcitrant than the great C. Arthur Shires has promised to behave himself and play good baseball for the Sox.

Bush is one of the old type managers to whom baseball is a four-hour per day job and not a nine-inning task. The Sox management are doing everything possible to secure Dash the men he wants. He has obtained Smead Jolley and the heavy hitter will round out an outfield that may be vicious on the attack.

By Shifting Chalmers Cissell to second base and Bill Hummel to short, Dash will start with the best infield the Rose have had in many seasons. Bush needs a catcher and a couple of pitchers but even without them, he is certain he will have the Sox in the race.

Bill Killefer is no experiment at St. Louis. He was a good manager when with the Chicago Cubs and has learned much since quitting the National league. He starts with a fair club and has added some promising new men. If Killefer can get along with Phil Ball—which he has proved to do—he will succeed for the Brown owner is not parsimonious when it comes to getting good players.

Walter Johnson's first year at Washington was not a success but Barney should do better in 1930 for it usually takes a manager two or three years to get a player's view point.

Doston is the only American league club on which the status of the manager is uncertain. It is reliably reported that Bill Carrigan will not return and those on the inside at Doston believe Heinie Wagner will be the next Red Sox leader. Wagner has been Carrigan's assistant for three years and is a smart baseball man.

Barnard believes there are several clubs in the American league who will show increased strength against the Athletics, who generally are standing pat on the championship lineup of 1929 and that the race will be a closer affair. If that proves true the customers will find their way to the ticket windows.

MUELLER, RIOUX ARE MATCHED FOR DEC. 27

Chicago.—(P)—Hein Mueller, clever German heavyweight, and Elzeir Rioux, Canadian heavyweight champion, will be fighting for a match with Otto von Porat, when they meet at the Chicago stadium, Dec. 27.

Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the stadium has lined up a promise from Ed Stevenson, von Porat's manager, to meet the winner late in January or early in February. The Mueller-Rioux bout is down as the semi-final to the Bud Taylor-Earl Mastre bout.

INDIANA CAGERS WILL MEET PENN SATURDAY

Bloomington, Ind.—(P)—The University of Indiana basketball squad today was en route to Philadelphia, where it will meet the University of Pennsylvania five in an intercollegiate contest Saturday night.

TWO KNOCKOUTS FEATURE AMATEUR FIGHT PROGRAM

Chief Miller, Neenah, Loses Decision to Milwaukee Battler

APPLETON amateur fight fans were treated to another first class main program Thursday night by Oney Johnston post of the American legion, a program that produced two knockouts and four decisions, all except one blood-tingling fights.

The windup on the evening's card was a bit of disappointment because Tommy Dennis, Milwaukee Italian, who was substituted at the last minute as an opponent for Hans Ahls, was just a bit too short armed for the Oshkosh youth who had things pretty much his own way.

But Tommy kept trying all the time and even in defeat won the plaudits of the crowd. He took everything Ahls had to offer only once a couple body blows causing his any trouble.

The semi wind up probably was one of the most interesting bouts for it showed a youngster who was able to "take" Chief Miller, the Neenah Indian. Howard Roetz was the winner and being from Charlie Higgins's stable, he probably is getting all kinds of praise from the veteran mentor who has sought a win over the Chief for a long while.

Roetz started the fight at top speed and caused Miller trouble by sticking a left in his face. Near the close of the round Miller registered with his left to Roetz's jaw and it showed up the big Milwaukeean. The second round was slower than the first and although Roetz had two badly battered eyes he still had a decided edge.

Roetz started the third and last round just as he started the first, moving about the Chief at fast pace and getting the better of all exchanges. He was jabbing his left to the face and hammering away at the body as Chief Miller, baffled by the attack and bleeding from the mouth, was much the worse from wear when the fight ended.

A couple lightweight who threw gloves so fast it was hard to see them, performed in the fourth bout of the evening. They were Marcel Frigardie, Milwaukee, and Andy Durr, Racine. The latter won the decision easily although the boys put up a slam bang exhibition that had the fans on the edge of their chairs all the time. Frigardie received a big hand when he left the ring even in defeat. He had suffered a cut eye in the second round but the manner in which he "stayed in and pitched ball" won the admiration of all the fans.

The third bout also was a real battle with the decision going to Hank Blyth, Milwaukee, and Vigg Lindby, Milwaukee, the loser. Blyth showed himself a clever boxer and held off the onrush of the big Dane with ease. He continually peppered Lindby's body although the blows did not appear to slow him up.

The first two bouts were both technical knockouts. Marty Harloff, Milwaukee, a heavyweight winning over Bock, Racine, in the second round of their fight, and Joe Bieble, Oshkosh winning from Art Miller, Milwaukee. The latter boys were 127 pounders.

In the heavyweight Melee Harloff had everything his own way and played with the Racine boy. In the second round Bock slumped to the canvas after taking a lot of punishment and the referee stopped the fight.

Miller, loser of the curtain raiser was the victim of a solar plexus punch. He had been fighting a losing scrap against a wiser opponent when he caught a terrific body blow that did not act for a few seconds—but when it did he was through for the evening.

Julius Fiedler, Milwaukee, was referee. Coach Clarence H. Rasmussen and Walter "Wassie" Hendricks the judges.

HOCKEY PLAYERS TO MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

Plans for the winter's hockey season will be the subject of debate at a meeting of hockey players Friday evening at the Roach Sport Shop. The pucksters met Tuesday night and had a long discussion about things in general but adjourned until Friday when it is expected more definite plans will be in the making.

Indications are the city will be represented by one independent hockey club this season with a playing personnel of about 12 men. Last season two local teams chased the rubber about the ice.

KANSAS CITY GETS HOLLY FROM BRUINS

Chicago.—(P)—Ed Holley, right-handed pitcher, who has been the property of the Chicago Cubs for the last three years, has been released to the Kansas City club of the American association. His release completed the deal for pitcher Lynn Nelson. Holley was with Reading of the International league last season.

Stanford Favored To Win Over West Point

BY LAWRENCE PERRY Copyright 1929

New York.—High in spirit, determined to show the country that last year's debacle at the Yankee stadium in New York did not reflect the relative merits of football as played at West Point and at Stanford university, the Army team has started for Palo Alto where on Dec. 25, a week from next Saturday, the cadets will play a return game against the Cardinals.

For a brief period, as the motorbuses containing the party of 102 players, coaches and officers making up the migrating contingent rolled down the steep, stone-bound roadway to the railway station, there was a break in the rigid scheme of military life. The cadet regiment headed by the post band marched to the train, where with cheer and song they left their departing comrades know that their hearts are with them and that daily over the thousands of miles lying between the palms and eucalyptus groves of lovely Palo Alto and the grim, iceclotted highlands of West Point will go the concentrated thought of the thousand odd cadets who have been left behind.

Even with abundant opportunities for practice under perfect playing conditions, with ample high grade material and a coach whose cunning surpasses that of almost any football teacher in the country, the impression must be that West Point is essaying a most difficult venture.

Especially so, in view of the fact that the Army has had no opportunities whatever for outdoor scrimmage practice, nor indoor either since there is no covered arena suitable for this purpose at West Point.

Winter set in early upon the hills of the Hudson this year. Snow and ice have covered the playing fields and quick thaws have been followed immediately by freezing, so that anything involving tackling or quick shifts plays has been out of the question.

It comes down to this, that the Army by the time it takes the field against Stanford will have had five days of real practice, and all of that at Palo Alto. On the other hand, intelligence concerning Stanford's attack is far superior to anything the Cadets had last year, when flaws in scouting and other defects left the Cadets pretty soft for what the Cardinals had to deliver.

While it is certain that at Palo Alto the Army will face an attack which in point of driving force and versatility will prove superior to anything it has met in the past season, the West Point coaches hope they will be able to hold it within reasonable bounds at least and at the same time to launch an offensive which will cause Stanford players a lot of worry.

It should be a better game than the Army-Stanford contest last year but it must indeed be an ardent West Point enthusiast who cannot see that in many ways Stanford will inevitably hold the better cards when the two teams clash.

CHICKEN LUNCH AT BLUE GOOSE, SAT. NITE.

Lawrence college basketball team Friday afternoon held its last practice until after Christmas and put uniforms away until it prepares to meet Marquette university in a game scheduled for Saturday evening, Jan. 4, in Milwaukee.

The Vikings have just completed their early season training which includes a conference game with Beloit and hung up three straight victories. All except the conference game were won by good margins but Coach Denney is not quite satisfied with the team.

Composed of veteran players, the Vikings have not really grasped the band of offense being dished out by their mentor this winter and for that reason do not look as polished as other Viking fives have.

Down at Milwaukee Coach Cord Lippe of the Gold hasn't fared so well either, and that may work in Lawrence's favor. Lippe is coaching at Marquette for the first time and is having the usual troubles of a first year coach adapting men to his style game.

LAWRENCE CAGERS QUIT FOR HOLIDAYS

Will Return After Christmas to Prepare for Marquette Game

Lawrence college basketball team Friday afternoon held its last practice until after Christmas and put uniforms away until it prepares to meet Marquette university in a game scheduled for Saturday evening, Jan. 4, in Milwaukee.

The Vikings have just completed their early season training which includes a conference game with Beloit and hung up three straight victories. All except the conference game were won by good margins but Coach Denney is not quite satisfied with the team.

Composed of veteran players, the Vikings have not really grasped the band of offense being dished out by their mentor this winter and for that reason do not look as polished as other Viking fives have.

Down at Milwaukee Coach Cord Lippe of the Gold hasn't fared so well either, and that may work in Lawrence's favor. Lippe is coaching at Marquette for the first time and is having the usual troubles of a first year coach adapting men to his style game.

ALPH GREENLEAF WINS POCKET CUE TITLE IN PLAYOFF

ts $1,200 in Cash, $6,000 Salary and 16 Per Cent of Gate

DETROIT—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf of New York again holds the world's pocket billiard championship. This star quest defeated Erwin Rudolph of Chicago in a playoff for the world's crown by 2 to 0 in 15 innings. The game was not spectacular, but was marked by hard fighting and excellent defensive work. Both players seemed to be showing the strain, Greenleaf being twice and making a foul shot, offenses seldom charged into the headlines. Rudolph was guilty of at least four misses in the first half. The game settled in a battle of defense. At the end of nine innings Rudolph was leading 25 to 0. In the tenth inning Greenleaf found his stride and play, deliberately, also rather slowly, Greenleaf with care, he accumulated 41 when he missed on a rail shot for the corner. Rudolph had an excellent chance at a stage but was stopped at 20 on a missed left hand shot on short try for the corner back with missing the six ball for the corner on a long break shot. Incidentally, that was the only shot Greenleaf missed on a called ball during the game. He surrendered the table Rudolph in the other innings on a scratch, miscues and a 1. Rudolph's answer to Greenleaf's 41 was only 7 when he missed their relatively easy shot. On the next four innings defense in order but in the 15th inning Greenleaf ran 12, when he missed the four ball in trying to get a break. This brought the total to 102. Rudolph ran 14 and missed on his way to a long run on a missed his second left hand shot on a side rail shot for the corner. His total then was 67. Greenleaf came back with two, retired when he fouled on the ball after pocketing the two. His total then was 103. In Rudolph's half he ran two and said well for the tournament when he missed a cut shot for the side. Greenleaf ended the game with a total of 22.

By winning the title, Greenleaf netted $1,200 in cash, a salary of $6,000 a year given by the National billiard association. Greenleaf also received 16 per cent of the net receipts. The tournament this year drew an average of 100,000 spectators in the history of pocket billiards, playing to capacity crowds at nearly all of the games. Greenleaf's salary of $6,000 a year. He will receive 15 per cent of the net receipts. Frank Taborski for sharing third will receive $800 and 13 per cent; Marcel Camp, a, $800 and 12 per cent; Pasquale Alfie, sixth, $500 and 11 per cent; neer Divsey, seventh $400 and 10 per cent; Joseph McCann, eighth, $300 and 9 per cent. Under the rules, Greenleaf will not be asked to defend the title for one year. He first won the title in 1919 Philadelphia and held it without interruption until he lost to Frank Wierski in the National league in 1927. He has won and lost it a number of times, since, dropping the year a year ago to Taborski after a lay-off in Chicago. In the present tournament he earned a tie by beating Rudolph in the final game the tournament on Wednesday night by 125 to 79.

New York Doctor Is Remaker Of Champions

BY DONN SUTTON
New York—Iron-fisted actors in the punch-and-bloody show call him "the milt mender."
To others he is the Remaker of Champions.
But certain it is that the husky parade that winds through the anteroom of Dr. Wilfred G. Fraleigh's office here constitutes a "Who's Who" of the boxing game—and of the sporting world in general.
For Dr. Fraleigh operates a repair shop to which men with names made famous by boxing headlines on the sport pages bring mighty fists that have crumbled, strong arms that have been twisted by an awkward heave of a baseball or a football, the staves and tendons torn by the ill-timed swing of a golf club or a hockey stick.

REPAIRER OF ATHLETES
Dr. Fraleigh is, by profession, an abdominal surgeon, with a distinguished practice, but in the last five years he has built up a new fame as a repairer of athletes.
Noted champions have beaten a path to his door. Tunney, Dempsey, Sharkey, Firpo and even the outstanding contender for ring honors, Max Schmeling, have taken their physical and sometimes mental troubles to this friend of the fight.

STORMS DELAY TRAIN CARRYING ARMY "11"

Soldiers Forced to Cancel Workout Scheduled at Galesburg, Ill.

Chicago—(AP)—Army's football squad today was on its way toward California's balmy winter weather—but still behind schedule.
Its special train three hours late in Chicago, the Army corps failed to stop at Galesburg, Ill., when it finally resumed its march on Stanford university, and was cheated out of one of its stop-off workouts. The failure to stop at Galesburg also disappointed townspeople and Knox college students who had prepared a huge greeting for the Army squad.
Coach Bill Jones hoped to be able to sidetrack the train for a while today at Syracuse, Kas., while he sent the men through a signal drill.
A stop was made at South Bend, Ind., late yesterday, but not for the purpose of taking practice. The cadets listened to cheers and wishes of good luck in its game on the coast from its important rival and 129 conqueror-Notre Dame. The players were train tired, following the slow journey from the east, but were looking forward to weather in to which they could venture forth comfortably.

PICK MORGAN TO BEAT BENNY BASS

Junior Lightweight Expected to Lose Bout With Philadelphia

New York—(AP)—The betting fraternity is willing to give odds that the junior lightweight championship will transfer its headquarters from Seattle to Philadelphia tonight when Tod Morgan defends his somewhat synthetic title against Benny Bass in Madison Square Garden.
Overnight odds made the deadly punching Bass 8 to 5 favorite but these were expected to narrow to around 6 to 5 at ring time. The fight is for 15 rounds.
Morgan will have an advantage in weight, height and reach but the stocky built Hebrew is much the harder puncher. Bass' last major engagement here was against Tony Canzonieri for the featherweight championship. On that occasion, Bass suffered a broken bone in his shoulder early in the fight but fought so savagely that he barely dropped the decision to the great little New York Italian. Morgan is a frail looking fighter who can box with any of them but whether he can stand up under Bass' punishing blows the experts are inclined to doubt.

U. W. HOCKEY TEAM BEATS MICHIGAN TECH

Houghton, Mich.—(AP)—Displaying beautiful combination work, the University of Wisconsin hockey team last night swept to a 3-1 victory over the puckmen of Michigan Tech.
It was the seasonal opener for both teams and the game was unusual in that it combined speed and a marked absence of fouls. Only one was called, on Swiderski of Wisconsin.
Tech depended mainly on individual work in contrast to the unity of Wisconsin, and could do no more than get one goal, though that one was a thriller.

WOULD FIREPROOF FORESTS

Forest fires may be prevented by the application of a method of injecting fire resisting mineral "soup" into living trees, according to those who have tested the process recently perfected at the College of Forestry at Tharandt, Germany. Trees thus treated are said to have produced lumber which is strongly resistant to flames. The fireproofing process consists of feeding a thin solution, composed of compounds of silicon and chlorine and other chemicals, to the tree through holes bored into the trunk close to the ground. As the sap rises it carries the solution to all parts of the tree, rendering it fireproof.

Chapter 34
A FIRE ESCAPE

BARBARA left her taxi at the corner of Eighth avenue and, having instructed the driver to wait, walked the remaining half block on 58th street to the apartment house Henderson had named.

At the outer door she found the name of Rita Gilmore. At the actual sight of that name her throat tightened. Proof that, at least, Henderson's story was true.

Her hand went out to the bell, hovered around it, then, with a little jerk, pressed it. She bit her lower lip while she waited for the lock to commence clicking. Presently, when the door showed no signs of opening, she pressed the bell again. Again no response. She walked out of the vestibule and back into the street. Far too overwrought, was she to go home. That night—somehow—she must ascertain the truth, whatever it might be.

Perhaps, even had they been in, they might not have chosen to answer the bell. How, then, was she to verify the story?

Her glance strayed into the courtyard. There she noticed the fire escape. Why not? She felt capable that night of anything.

She moved towards it, as though impelled. Furtively she glanced about to make sure no one was watching. The next moment, with much the air of a thief not quite nerved to his business, she had swung herself onto the bottom landing and was climbing rapidly and breathlessly.

At the third floor she stopped and crouched in an aperture. A row of unlighted windows faced her. Evidently they had not been at home. A few minutes longer she waited, then, with the annoying feeling that she had done a stupid and unnecessary thing, she was on the point of descending, when a light suddenly showed in one of the windows.

Immediately she saw the silhouette of other lights popping up against the drawn shades. But in one room only, the room immediately facing her, had a broken blind not been drawn. This room she saw to be a kitchen.

Apparently a tall, dark girl had switched on the light and was watching her moving about the room, getting cups and plates down out of the cupboard as though preparing supper. From that distance Barbara could see that she was striking, with her thin, tapering figure and her wealth of straight black hair. Her frock was black and of some soft, filmy material.

So absorbed was she in the girl that it was a minute or so before she noticed that a man had come into the kitchen. At first when she saw him, she thought of him as some figure in a horribly fantastic nightmare.

Her lips moved in a strained cry, or there could be no mistaking that Jean figure towering above Rita. Undoubtedly, the man was Ray. Barbara stared dumbly, her nails digging into the railing. She watched him help the girl set the table and prepare supper. Apparently absolutely at home! This in itself killed the last struggling hope in Barbara's heart.

Ray, her Ray, at this hour of night calmly taking supper in this woman's apartment. Ray—who had refused to stay the night with her, pleading excessive work. She choked over a bitter laugh. What a fool to have kept on believing in him—to have kept on hoping.

They were sitting down to supper, bread and cheese and cocoa, on a gay orange checkered cloth. They laughed and talked as they ate. Barbara watched them through that meal in a dazed, persistent manner each moment allowing herself to sink deeper into a mood of a bitter cynicism.

Fantastic schemes came to her. Supposing—somehow—she were to get inside that building and walk right into that apartment. . . . What would happen? Herself she would be charming, freely charming, insisting upon sitting down to table with them and finishing that meal.

Absurd conversations floated through her mind, politeness tinged with irony. "How nice of you, Miss Gilmore, to undertake to look after my husband while he is away from me." If only Henderson were there to join them!

Then, she was convinced she would have had the nerve to insist upon gaining admittance. But, to go alone, wouldn't that be exposing herself to unnecessary ridicule? What good could she do by bursting into that apartment and creating a scene, fatally tainted by melodrama, except to hurt herself further and give that tall, dark girl something to chuckle over for days?

Their meal finished, she saw them switch off the light and disappear into the adjoining room, to work, had she known it, upon the score of the revue. Had she waited longer she might have heard sounds of jazz emerge through the halloopened window.

But Barbara was gone, creeping back down that fire escape with feet that seemed leaden, a slight breeze ruffling her hair. An eternity it took her to reach her taxi. Once inside she sank into a corner. Closing her eyes, she remained motionless, numb, physically, numb mentally. Finally, the driver bowed and impatiently, rasped out at her:

"Where do you want to go, Miss?"

Mechanically she was about to give her home address when she changed her mind. With the persistence of a drowning man clutching at a straw she thought she might have been over hasty in judging Ray. Absurd to expect him to leave his apartment to dress, had he finished eating—had she waited a few minutes longer, in all probability she would see him come out into the street.

A quick sense of elation came to her with this thought. She told the driver to park a little distance from the apartment house, on the other side of the road.

"Wait here for 10 minutes," she told herself. "If he's coming, he should be out by then. This isn't so late for stage people."

A lonely, heart-breaking vigil she kept, sitting there—two hours' vigil. For, of course, her 10 minutes stretched to 25, then to 20. Hope is terribly hard to kill.

Once, when a long shadow threw itself across the pavement as someone started to dress, from her tense, sick with eagerness.

But the man, when he did appear, bore not the slightest resemblance to Ray. Closing her eyes, as though to shut out the disappointment of his short, stocky figure, she sat listlessly back into her corner.

A despairing moan she brought to her rescue. Stupid, she told herself, to sit all night, in the dark, cheerless street while Ray, no doubt, slept comfortably in that woman's apartment!

At that she roused herself and told the man abruptly to drive her home. As they turned the corner of 58th street, somewhere in the neighborhood a clock struck four. Ten minutes later Ray emerged from the building—having stayed longer than was customary to wrestle with a number that had been baffling him for days.

But Henderson's clever scheme and mercenary hopes are blasted in tomorrow's chapter.

STUDENTS PRESENT CHRISTMAS PLAY TO KAUKAUNA PARENTS

Production Is Offered in High School Auditorium Thursday

Kaukauna—Students of the high school and the Kaukauna community are presenting a Christmas play, Thursday afternoon at the high school auditorium under the direction of Miss Barbara Baldwin, music teacher. Thirty-one students took part in the production.

The theme of the play was the story of two small boys in about the year 1400. Both wanted to go to the cathedral to hear the chimes ring. One was prevented from going when an old woman came to the house of his grandmother where he was staying. He didn't go because he was afraid that the fire would go out and the old lady would freeze. The old lady was a fairy and took him to the cathedral where he made his offering of a few pennies. For a number of years the chimes did not ring because no one had made a perfect gift. When the little boy made his offering the chimes began to ring.

Featuring the play were the beautiful costumes worn by the children and the singing of the Christmas carols were sung by the glee club while the orchestra played Christmas pieces.

Those who took part in the presentation were Wilbur Derrus, E. Wian, Jewel Huebner, E. Gerhart, H. Jurgensmeyer, E. Thyrion, W. Wink, C. Melchior, V. Brown, W. Haas, R. Wilpott, J. Wondorach, R. Initiation of a large class of candidates was held by the Sacred Heart court No. 556, Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, Wednesday evening in the south side Forester hall. After initiation, which was supervised by Miss M. Darin, representative of the high court, the annual Christmas party was held. Gifts were exchanged by members.

KAW CAGERS PERFORM FIRST TIME TONIGHT

Kaukauna—Kaukauna basketball fans will have a glimpse of the new high school team for the first time Friday evening when it plays the alumni in the opening game of the season. Besides viewing the results of several weeks work by Paul E. Little, new Kaukauna coach, the fans will be treated to a performance of old high school stars.

The alumni have been practicing for the past week and present a formidable line-up. The line-up will include Sager, Esler and Main at guards, Miller and Taylor at forwards and W. Miller at center. Several more alumni are expected to be at hand to relieve the boys if the strain proves too great.

MOTORISTS WARNED TO SHY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Kaukauna—Motorists are advised by the fire department to take notice of the section of the new traffic code which states that no cars may enter the block in which the fire department is at work on a fire. Sometimes cars crowd too near while the fire department is fighting a blaze and hamper the work.

Common courtesy, as well as the statewide law, demands that motorists observe this ruling in order that the fire fighters may have every opportunity to put forth their best efforts in checking fires, the department points out. Motorists violating this provision of the code will be reported.

KAW BOWLERS DEFEAT CHUTERS THREE GAMES

Kaukauna—Kaukauna's Bakers took three games from Van's Meats of Little Chute in the inter-county bowling league Wednesday evening on Hilgenberg alleys. The scores for the Bakers were 1,001, 887 and 845 and for the Meats 928, 835 and 864. S. Timmers of Little Chute rolled 234 for high single score and 619 for high total.

LITTLE ILLNESS FOUND IN SCHOOL, SAYS CITY NURSE

Majority of Ailments Consist of Colds, Miss Ceil Flynn Reports

Kaukauna—There is little sickness in the city now, according to Miss Ceil Flynn, city nurse. A number of persons are suffering from colds, good care should be taken so that they do not become serious, she pointed out.

There are only a few families quarantined with contagious diseases. A year ago the city was invaded by a number of scarlet fever cases. The village of Combined Locks is fighting an epidemic of measles and whooping cough. The public school there has been closed until after the holidays. Several cases of measles were found in the school.

In venturing out in severe weather persons should always see that they are sufficiently clothed to prevent colds. Care also should be taken when coming in contact with crowds. Avoid crowds as much as possible.

When a person becomes afflicted with a cold immediate care should be given. The cold may develop into grippe or pneumonia. Prevention is better than cure, the nurse advises.

30 FAMILIES TO GET CHRISTMAS BASKETS

Kaukauna—Final arrangements are being made for the distribution of Christmas baskets to Kaukauna's needy families. About 30 baskets will be delivered by boy scouts. A committee of business men and Legionnaires will direct the delivery. Funds for the good cheer baskets were obtained by the annual Charity ball given by the Kaukauna American legion.

CONDUCT QUARTERLY FIRE INSPECTION

Kaukauna—The last quarterly fire inspection is being made by the fire department. The fire zone includes the business district of the city. The stores and business places are in good condition from a standpoint of fire hazards.

IRISH FIGHT EMPIRE RULE OF SENIORITY

Dublin—(P)—The Irish Free State intends to contest Australia's candidature for a seat on the Council of the League of Nations. This is not because of any objection of Australia but as a protest against the practice which gives diplomatic precedence to the various members of the British Commonwealth according to their seniority. Canada ranks first and Australia next.

The Free State Government officials regard this distinction as irreconcilable with the principle of absolute equality as laid down at the last Imperial Conference in London. They object, therefore, to the automatic succession of Australia to Canada, and will put forward a claim for the seat for the Free State Government.

BOOK CAUSES SCARE
What John Burns, England's first labor cabinet member, might tell in his forthcoming book, is causing something of a ferment. As he pens his recollections, certain politicians are said to be shuddering. Of course, there are many skeletons of pre-war days that the retired statesman rattle dolefully but will he? It is a question that agitates not a few and that John Burns has not yet answered.

Common courtesy, as well as the statewide law, demands that motorists observe this ruling in order that the fire fighters may have every opportunity to put forth their best efforts in checking fires, the department points out. Motorists violating this provision of the code will be reported.

POSTAL CLERKS ARE SWAMPED WITH MAIL

Kaukauna—Postal employees are in the midst of the annual Christmas rush. Five extra men have been added to the force to give patrons service during the last few days before Christmas. A special window has been opened for mailing parcels. Business there is so heavy that patrons are forced to stand in line and await their turn. No mail will be delivered Christmas day.

The Post-Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Lloyd Derrus. His telephone number is 194-W. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Derrus.

STATISTICS TELL WHY CHICAGO IS MURDER CAPITAL

Slayer Faces Less Than One Chance in Hundred of Paying With Life

BY BRUCE CATTON
Chicago—When a man commits a murder in the city of Chicago, there is just one chance in 62 that he will ever be sentenced to the electric chair and one chance in 106 that he will actually be executed.

There is once chance in 20 that he will get a life term in the penitentiary. He stands one chance in six of drawing a lesser term in prison or in the reformatory; but on the other hand, he has nearly one chance in three of either being acquitted or having his case nolle prossed.

There are percentages compiled from figures on Chicago crime kept by the Chicago Crime Commission. They shed a revealing light on the city that has been called "the crime capital of America."

There are various angles from which Chicago's crime statistics can be studied.

The death penalty almost seems to be inoperative. Consider, for instance, this fact: since the year 1840 (when Chicago was no more than a hamlet) to the present day, there have been only 168 people executed in Cook county.

A MURDER A DAY

Yet, during the last five years, Chicago has been averaging about one murder a day.

From Jan. 1, 1924, till Nov. 1, 1929, Cook county coroners' juries returned 2189 verdicts of murder.

In the same time the grand jury voted 544 indictments. Thus less than 50 per cent of the killers were even indicted. Thirty-five persons were sentenced to death; of this number 20 actually went to the scaffold or the electric chair.

One hundred and eight drew life terms in prison. Three hundred and forty-nine got lesser terms, ranging from indeterminate reformatory sentences and one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary on up.

Twenty-four were found insane and sent to asylums.
481 ACQUITTED OUTRIGHT
On the other hand, 481 were acquitted outright and the indictments against 59 more were nolle prossed.

The causes of this state of affairs are not hard to find.

For some time, of course, Chicago labored under a handicap of alliance between the underworld and powerful political leaders. There has been a clean-up in that respect, to be sure; the state's attorney's office and the police department now are doing their best to catch all criminals.

Even now, however, the killer has all the best of it. As one prominent Chicagoan remarks:
"Theoretically our law is designed to protect the innocent, but as a matter of practical fact it protects the guilty. A man accused of crime has so many legal safeguards thrown around him that it is no wonder that a lawyer finds it easy to acquit a guilty client. The wonder is that the state ever succeeds in getting convictions."

The wealth of peremptory challenges which a defense lawyer may use when a jury is being chosen, for instance, gives him a magnificent chance for prolonging the trial and excluding from the jury all persons who show signs of reasonable intelligence.

A defendant's previous record cannot be introduced, under the law, unless he takes the witness stand, in which case the prosecutor may bring it out in cross examination. A defendant shrewd enough not to take the witness stand may, consequently, have a criminal record long enough to paper the walls of the courtroom but the jury will never know it.

In addition, court procedure allows defense attorneys to postpone trials and sentences almost indefinitely; and, once a man is convicted and sentenced, the taking of appeals can delay the carrying out of his sentence for a year, in many instances, or even longer. If, at the end of that time, he wins a retrial, the state's witnesses have often died or moved away.

PAROLEES GET PUNISHMENT

Of the 108 killers who have been sentenced to life imprisonment since the beginning of 1924, a great many will enjoy years of freedom before they go to their graves. The words, "life imprisonment," do not mean what they say in all cases. The parole law and the pardoning power are responsible. "Life imprisonment" often means anything but that.

Perhaps the situation could be summed up like this:
If you kill a man in Chicago you probably won't be indicted at all. If you are indicted, you have one chance of going to the electric chair in infinitesimal. Your chance of getting life imprisonment is not much greater—and, if you do get life, you probably won't serve all of your term.

R. C. A. IS EDGING WAY INTO RADIO'S FIELD IN AVIATION

Has Virtual Corner of Patents for Plane to Ground Communications

BY ROBERT MACK

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press Washington—(P)—Through its virtual corner of radio patents, the Radio Corporation of America is edging its way into the new and important aviation radio field, exacting, it is said, exclusive contracts which are declared to have aroused more than casual feeling.

The organized plan for the use of frequencies set aside for aviation communication, worked out after arduous days by aviation interests, it is charged, partially has been nullified by exclusive equipment contracts said to have been forced by the R. C. A. One such allegation is that the Curtiss Flying Service, maintaining a taxi plane service from Miami to Havana, has been denied the right to communicate on frequencies set aside for general aviation in this area because it does not use R. C. A. equipment.

This story was told to the Federal Radio commission at a conference with commercial aviation interests. The Pan American Airways, maintaining a regular plane transport over the Miami-West Indies route and operating along with it a radio-aviation chain, uses R. C. A. radio equipment.

G. R. Butler, communications engineer for the Curtiss company, a branch of the Curtiss-Wright company, told the conference about the refusal of Pan-American to handle its itinerant plane communications along the route despite the understanding among all aviation interests that any plane flying over a particular route should be permitted communication with the ground stations.

This was admitted by H. C. Leuterich, radio engineer of Pan-American who expressed his regrets, but said the service contract of his company with R. C. A. for equipment prevented the use of that particular equipment in toll services for any other plane or company. The inference was that R. C. A. felt it could further the use of its own equipment by such contractual arrangements.

The commission of course, has no jurisdiction over patents or contracts of this nature.

W. G. Logue, assistant to C. J. Pannil, president of the Radio-Marine Corporation of America, the operating subsidiary of R. C. A., said his organization would be glad to cooperate. But Mr. Butler stated the Curtiss people had "heard that story" since last August.

derly allocation of the channels reserved for aviation plane to ground and point communication was worked out by the commission in cooperation with the air transport lines and the operators. It provides for the joint use of frequencies by transport companies in areas where more than one company operates, to conserve the channels.

STUDENTS "RAG" CEREMONY
Conferring of degrees at University College, at Dublin, Irish Free State, recently was conducted with many terrific explosions, loud amid excitement caused by students anxious to "rag" the event. As a precaution a limited number of students were admitted to the council chamber, where the degrees were conferred behind locked doors by President Coffey. Although throwing of flour was banned, it was smuggled into the chamber and sprinkled on the candidates. Underneath the windows of the chamber were noisy demonstrations, which at times caused apprehension. With the arrival of the "rag" parade, there were many terrific explosions, loud amid excitement caused by students anxious to "rag" the event.

POST OFFICE NOW IN MIDST OF ITS BUSIEST SEASON

Peak of Christmas Mailing
Rush Draws Near; Full
Crew at Work

The postoffice is now in the midst of its busiest season of the year, handling the deluge of incoming and outgoing Christmas mail.

With an extra clerk working in the insurance and registry departments, several extra clerks at work at the stamp windows and a squad of extra workers aiding in sorting incoming and outgoing letters and cards, the department is working at top speed to handle the rush of mail.

Six extra trucks and ten additional men are assisting in delivering parcels post packages throughout the city. There also are four regular trucks at work. The basement has been converted into a special room for handling incoming parcels. The parcels are distributed here and assigned to the various trucks for delivery.

Stamp sales have increased every day this week, according to W. H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster, and the month is expected to show a good increase over the same month last year. Although the department has strived to have patrons realize the necessity of early mailing, it is believed that the peak of the Christmas rush will be reached either Saturday or Monday.

Long lines of patrons are standing at each of the service windows prac-

COUNTY HAS NO OFFICIAL GOOD WILL TOUR GROUP

While there are many reservations being made for the third annual Wisconsin good will tour, which starts from Milwaukee and Madison Feb. 23, there has yet been no movement in Outagamie-co to take part in the tour.

George Dobbins, Fremont, is managing the 1930 tour which will cover 26 central and southern cities including Matamoros, Mexico, New Orleans, San Antonio, Vicksburg, Memphis and many other cities of scenic and historic interest.

The Outagamie-co board, at its November meeting, followed the recommendation of the agricultural committee, and did not appropriate funds to pay the way of an official county delegation. The board did decide, however, that if there are any firms or individuals in the county who want to make the trip, they would be appointed as the official representatives and be permitted to take advantage of the special rates offered for the trip.

HONEYMOON

Berlin-Herr and Frau West, off on their honeymoon, decided they needed an automobile. They stole one off the street. Then they decided they needed food, so they sold parts of the car, bought food with the money and abandoned the car. Then they decided they again needed a car. They stole another—in addition to the first. They were caught in the act of stealing their seventh honeymoon carriage.

Typically all day awaiting their turn to have parcels mailed, insured and registered, and to purchase stamps.

At Last A Treatment For Homely Doors

BY MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine. Written For Post-Crescent

Something had to be done about doors.

Formerly, no matter how cleverly you decorated the room, when you got through there were always those large masses of uninteresting wood. And you were lucky if they weren't red mahogany.

The new interior decoration could not tolerate this problem, and has found delightful answers.

There's a room, for instance, in which the woodwork is ivory and the wallpaper lightly patterned. A charming individuality is imparted by door panels painted in one of the predominant colors of the wallpaper—say green, blue or rose.

Where walls are painted, the door can gracefully be brought into a two-color plan. Thus, if the walls are light eggshell tint and the woodwork cocoa colored, why not a line of coral all around the baseboard, with the inside of closet doors in the same color?

What could be a nicer answer to the door problem than one like this: Door frames deep gray, matching the three-foot wainscoting; the four panels of each door and the ceiling, azure blue; and around each panel a border motif in gray and darker blue?

And is there any real reason why door decoration should be plain?

Painted motifs of innumerable kinds are possible and are especially good in kitchen, breakfast room or bedroom.

If, for instance, the draperies are chintz, the motif in the chintz may be copied. Or, if that is too much trouble, there are always the interesting paper cutouts, so easily pasted on and varnished over.

The door stands transformed

The chintz itself or wallpaper can easily be pasted and varnished. In a bedroom with plain walls, two doors covered with chintz or carefully chosen wallpaper panels become decorative instead of homely. This idea works wonders also in a small hallway or dining room.

FRENCH CASINOS BLEED BRITISHERS

Gambling Fever Has Taken
Hold of English Holiday
Makers

Paris (AP)—Gambling fever has British holiday makers in its grip, and the gamblers are pouring their shillings and pounds into France in almost enough volume to pay the French war debt to Britain.

Within a few hours travel of southern England, including London, there are dozens of French seaside resorts, and all these resorts have casinos. Le Touquet, Deauville, Trouville and Dinard are the chief ones, but there are scores of smaller ones. St. Leger, the Emerald Coast, the La Hougue casino alone made $2,600,000 last year, and the French government collected more than that in taxes.

British consuls are kept busy sending the losers back to England. Belgium has now added to the facilities for taking the British tripper's money by making roulette legal in all Belgian casinos. Roulette has hitherto been more or less confined to Monte Carlo.

There seems to be not the slightest chance of a reform wave striking France and causing prohibition of gambling, which happened periodically before the war. The reason is that the government makes millions from gambling by taxation, and the government needs the money badly.
